Schools want control of maintenance

By Neil Fater

After years of frustration over the condition of its schools, the School Committee directed the superintendent Tuesday to develop a plan that will allow the school system to maintain its own buildings.

Such a change would require a major shake-up of the town's maintenance department because 75 percent of Andover's buildings are school buildings.

"We've talked for a long time as a group," said Dick Muller, committee member. "It's time to either do something or zip it up."

The committee is particularly upset with what it considers a poor cost-accounting mechanism used by the maintenance department. Since the implementation of the 1993 Education Reform

Three-minute rule slammed at meeting, page 32.

Act, the state has required more vigorous accounting because it has set minimum levels for what must be spent on each pupil.

"I know the ante has been jacked up so high we cannot avoid staring this demon (accountability) in the face," said Susan Dalton, committee chairwoman.

Although the maintenance department has made some changes in the last year and a half, committee members do not appear to think enough has been

Residents oppose Den Rock plans

By Joan Brown

After enduring round after round of proposals over the past decade for an 71-acre property near Den Rock Park, neighbors have joined together with the hope of having something besides homes, golf courses or factories built at the site.

"We're definitely interested in having the property used for conservation land," Brendan Dugan, of 12 Stirling St. and spokesman for the fledgling Andover Residents for Conservation group, said Tuesday. "It is certainly the first choice of people who live around here. Any development would add to an already overburdened infrastructure."

Owned by Rose Champy, the property

Attached to their vintage vehicles

By Neil Fater

Don Mathias bought his first car, a 1965 Dodge Coronet convertible, in Akron, Ohio, "the Tire Capital of the World." Today, his cherished ragtop rests on four flat tires.

The car itself is still in decent shape, however, and Mr. Mathias, of Andover Street, said he plans a restoration project soon, perhaps as early as next week.

Why restore a car that's been parked in the driveway for two years?

"There's a lot of memories. It's the car my wife and I dated in, the car we took our honeymoon in, the car I picked (his son) Don up at the hospital in," said Mr. Mathias. "It also represents the time in your life when everything was new and your future was ahead of you.

"I like chrome and steel and the feel of a good car," he said. "Like a Viking, I'll be buried in it."

Mr. Mathias is not alone in having strong feelings for his vehicle. Many people love their old cars. You can see them on the road every day, driving rusty, old Volkswagen Bugs and huge, rattling hunks of American steel-on-wheels.

And you might be surprised by what some people will do to keep them.

Take the case of Bill Fahey, youth services coordinator, who was driving down Main Street when the back of his truck

Turning grape juice into wine in Andover

By Don Staruk

George Marotta is not a bootlegger. But Mr. Marotta, 70, of 91 Argilla Road, has been making and using his own wine for more than 30 years.

"Last year I made 178 gallons," Mr. Marotta said while sharing a sample of his wine recently.

His 1994 Zinfandel took first place in its category, varietal red, in The Center for Italian Culture's 1995 Homemade Wine Competition, held May 8 in Watertown. Produced under his own label, Gigi L'Amoroso Winery, which uses the title of an Italian song that means "the amorous one," the Zinfandel was one of 23 entries in its category and won by more than 10 points. Mr. Marotta also received the Culture Center's certification of master winemaker.

In addition to drinking it himself, Mr. Marotta uses his wine for dinner party gifts and it is the featured straddles the Andover/Lawrence line, with about 55 acres in Andover and 16 acres in Lawrence. About one-third of the land is currently zoned for residential use. The remainder, including a portion bordering Den Rock Park in Lawrence, is zoned for industrial use. And industrial development may not be far away.

Residents oppose proposal to develop near Den Rock

Engineers for the developer submitted a preliminary plan for a 3-lot industrial subdivision to town planners last Tuesday, May 23. The plan includes an industrial roadway running from the end of Stirling Street to the development site.

That preliminary plan will be reviewed at the next meeting of the Planning Board, scheduled for June 13.

'It would change the character of the neighborhood.'

Brendan Dugan

"It would change the character of the neighborhood," said Mr. Dugan.

He described Stirling Street as fairly narrow and inadequate as an access for industrial traffic. He and other residents would like the town to purchase the site as conservation land and preserve it for managed public recreational use.

"The town acquiring that property is not easy," said Buzz Stapczynski, town manager.

The property currently has federal liens against it for back taxes, for which the town could be responsible if it were taken by eminent domain, he said. There may also be a problem with possible hazardous waste on the site.

The property also has more than $200,000 outstanding in town property taxes.

Earlier this year, a 40-lot subdivision of single family homes was planned for the site. But a proposal needed to change the zoning from industrial to residential was defeated at April Town Meeting. Neighbors and members of the Andover Trails Committee then argued against residential development on the site.

The Trails Committee's plans to extend a greenway along the Shawshen River - which crosses the site - would be impacted by the proposed industrial planning as well.

"We're very much interested in that," said Al French, a member of the Trails Committee and active in the Shawshen River Greenway Project. "It relates to the overall greenway concept and it relates to Den Rock Park."

Of importance to both groups is that town officials hear their concerns. The Andover Residents for Conservation sent a petition to selectmen on May 10, but have not received a response. They plan to attend the next Board of Selectmen meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 5, at town offices.

"We want to make sure we get our voice heard," said Mr. Dugan. "From our perspective, we're interested in what the town (officials') reaction is."

Budget addresses Title V problems

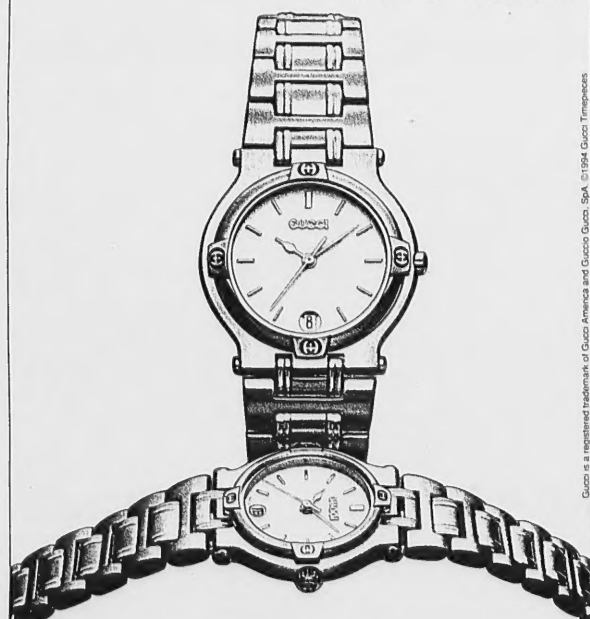

The budget approved by the state Senate for FY96 includes language that would direct the Department of Environmental Protection to identify the sewer needs of municipalities throughout the state.

In light of the new Title V environmental regulations requiring the upgrading of septic systems across the state, Sen. John D. O'Brien, D-Andover, sponsored an amendment that would require DEP to create a centralized inventory to identify communities with the greatest financial need to improve septic and sewer systems. The amendment was contained in the budget approved by the Senate and now must go before a House and Senate Conference Committee to determine whether it will be included in the final budget sent to Governor Weld for his signature.

School Committee lets seniors mark off land behind Doherty

By Neil Fater

Making clear its decision was not a commitment to give up its land, the School Committee gave seniors permission to look at the field behind Doherty Middle School as a possible spot for the new senior center.

However, the committee members said they expect this spot to be one of several the seniors seriously consider and asked that the seniors mark off the three-and-a-half acres of land they desire to show what the impact will be on the Doherty field space.

"I don't personally think that we have looked at all the areas that can be used," said Dick Muller, committee member. "Whatever we decide to do as a town has to be part of a plan. It can't be just trying to solve a pressure point."

Mr. Muller said the schools will need that land not just if student population continues to rise, but if the system decides to return to middle school athletic teams or intramural activities.

Committee members indicated other avenues would have to be exhausted before they would consider turning over this land.

Center named for Joshua Miner

A new 150 acre conservation area in Garrison, N.Y., on the banks of the Hudson River, that will serve as national headquarters for Outward Bound USA will be dedicated Monday, June 5, in honor of the organization's founder in the states, Joshua Miner of 40 Central St.

The Joshua L. Miner Outward Bound Center, which includes an historic structure that has been restored, will serve as national headquarters for the organizations seven schools.

The 150 acre conservation area includes was leased by OB for $1 a year with the option to buy it for a dollar after 25 years. The site is nearly across from West Point and about an hour from New York City.

Mr. Miner will be honored at the ceremonies Monday.

ConsCom near approval on Eisai plans

By Alix Driscoll

Great faith can move granite mountains, it is said. But this month Andover's Conservation Commission made property owners move mountains of sand and a carefully constructed stone wall because they were too close to wetlands.

But the ConsCom's main business at its May 16 meeting was to wrap up petitions related to Eisai Merrimack Valley's proposed plant on Federal Street, on the east side of Route 93.

The ConsCom agreed to issue its order of conditions at its June 6 meeting, the last step for the ConsCom in allowing Eisai to construct a $34 million pharmaceutical production plant at 100 Federal St., in the Woodland Park industrial site. It seems the timing is crucial. Harlan Doliner, attorney representing Eisai, said his client has a purchase and sale agreement that runs out June 1.

When Eisai came before the ConsCom several months ago to discuss the proposed plant, the commission agreed the company would wend its way through the wetlands-permit maze utilizing the same process as all the Woodland Park parcels developed to date. Several commission members questioned whether Eisai should follow 1978 rules and understandings, which gave 30 acres of wetlands to town when the industrial park was laid out, or current guidelines. Requiring Eisai to file new paperwork would greatly delay the permitting process.

After 45 minutes of discussion, the board agreed to require Eisai to comply with the old regulations. Bob Pustell, the chairman of the commission, said he was comfortable the 1978 laws sufficiently protect the two ponds and wet areas on the site.

Moving mountain and wall

Douglas DeMoulas, of Partridge Hill Road, who wants to build a swimming pool near wetlands, learned he had not yet filed required paperwork showing his house was actually built where it was supposed to be built and that it had the proper setbacks. Mr. DeMoulas must remove a large amount of sand he has dumped and must replant an embankment leading to the wetlands.

At its May 2 meeting, the ConsCom told a Pauline Drive resident, looking to build an addition, to move part of a stone wall he had built on town property.

Eight residents of Stoneybrook Circle, lot numbers 26-29 and 42-44 and 46, a cul-de-sac off River Street, could have trouble getting clear title to their homes if and when they try to sell them. Conservation easements on the lots, part of the Quailcrest subdivision, protect steep slopes to a ravine and stream. But the easements have not been conveyed legally to the town by either the developer or the present owners. One lot owner wrote to the commission trying to straighten out the problem, but Mr. Pustell said the owner was denied a certificate of compliance in June 1993 because the land had not been properly conveyed. The board is now pushing to have that situation remedied.

In other business, the ConsCom:

- Approved an order of conditions for 40 Railroad St. The order is related to planned development of the, former Tyer Rubber building;

- Issued a nine-page order of conditions to allow building near wetlands in the Sterling Oakes subdivision, off Rocky Hill Road. About a dozen residents interested in offering comments on the disputed subdivision were denied an opportunity to do so by Mr. Pustell, who said he had heard their concerns before and that it was too late to continue discussion. The land was extensively altered prior to 1978 by dredging a stream, draining a pond and filling bordering wetlands;

- Issued an order of conditions for construction of utilities, roads and water-detention basins on the 54-lot Somerset subdivision, off Chandler Road and North Street. Construction of single family houses impacting wetlands will require separate permits;

- Allowed Jerry Gonsalves to build a barn off Jenkins Way, as long as he protects the wetlands with hay bales;

- Dominic J. Mannarino was appointed conservation overseer for the Merrimack River conservation area adjacent to Hewlett-Packard Company off River Road.

Governor to decide train-whistle fate

By Joan Brown

The fate of train whistles in Andover now lies in the hands—or ears—of Gov. William Weld.

Senator John O'Brien, D-Andover, said Friday, May 26, that the budget approved by the Senate for FY96 included an amendment that would silence train whistles in Andover. Already adopted as an amendment in the House' FY96 budget, the bill would prohibit any train from sounding whistles at any grade crossing in Andover.

"This is just the first step," stated Sen. O'Brien. "Now we must convince Governor Weld that this is a worthwhile measure and that it deserves his support." Final approval must come from the governor, he said.

Buzz Stapeczynski, town manager, said Tuesday that the Department of Public Utilities will probably offer the governor a negative opinion on the proposal. "The governor will have to decide how much weight to put on that decision," he said.

Andover residents have been seeking relief from the whistles for more than three years, when a change in railroad policy resulted in train whistles being blown in town.

Massachusetts Senate funds dual-enrollment

By Neil Fater

High School students such as Andover's Melissa Dearborn can breathe a bit easier now that the state senate's budget vote appears to have resuscitated the dual-enrollment program.

Under dual enrollment, Ms. Dearborn and hundreds of other students have taken what she considers more challenging college courses at places such as Northern Essex Community College.

"It did well in the Senate," said Sen. John O'Brien, D-Andover.

"Funding was doubled from the $500,000 (in last year's budget) to $1 million in the Senate and it was expanded to allow private school students."

After state representatives eliminated dual-enrollment funding from their budget, some feared the program might be cut after only one year of existence.

But the senate vote will force the issue into a conference committee and in all likelihood save dual enrollment.

"Hopefully we're going to at least level-fund it from last year, and hopefully expand it," said Sen.

Warrior forum is June 14

The forum on whether to change Andover High School's logo will not be held June 12, as originally scheduled, because of a conflict with a night-time High School activity. The School Committee is considering holding the forum Wednesday, June 14. The meeting would be held in Memorial Hall Auditorium, which is attached to Doherty Middle School.

The Thymes, they are a-changin'

By Joan Brown

Situated back in an alley next to Marshalls, The Best of Thymes cafe was often in the worst of straits as noontime approached.

Their problem? Not enough space for their customers.

"We have seats now, but it's limited," said Marcia Cohen, owner of the Shawsheen Plaza shop. "People don't even come in here" when they see the crowd, she said.

All that will change by the end of the summer. The Best of Thymes will expand into the storefront currently occupied by Parade of Shoes, which is to close at the end of June.

Customers will have an easier time finding a seat, since the capacity will be expanding from the current 16 to about 40. The eating area, with table and chairs, will be in the new storefront, said Ms. Cohen. Kitchens, refrigeration and storeroom space will be expanded within the current shop confines.

Construction will begin early in July and should be completed about mid-August.

The Best of Thymes will continue to offer the same menu, featuring breakfast and luncheon specialties, salads, desserts and coffees. It will remain open through the construction. Ms. Cohen expects the renovation to have minimal impact on day-to-day business.

Genetics to make new product here

Genetics Institute Inc. last week announced positive results of a Phase II study of recombinant human interleukin-eleven (rhIL-11), which could eventually mean fewer transfusions for cancer patients. Based on this favorable outcome, GI plans to begin a Phase III study of rhIL-11 by the end of 1995, production for which will be provided at its Andover facility.

"We plan to implement the build-out of a Phase III manufacturing area in Andover for this product," Gina Brazier, G.I. spokeswoman, said last week.

The new manufacturing area will be built in existing space at the company's Burr Road facility.

In the study, rhIL-11 restored platelets in thrombocytopenic (platelet-depleted) patients undergoing cancer chemotherapy to the extent that significantly fewer rhIL-11-treated patients required platelet transfusions when compared to patients on placebo.

"We are extremely pleased with the results of this study," said Patrick Gage, Ph.D., chief operating officer. "We have now completed a rigorous 'real world' test of rhIL-11 in patients who, on entry into the study, were already platelet transfusion-dependent and were being treated with a wide variety of chemotherapy regimens. Despite these challenges, rhIL-11 achieved a statistically significant outcome for a meaningful clinical endpoint - eliminating platelet transfusions. Our goal now is to proceed expeditiously to a Phase III study and, assuming continued positive results, complete the regulatory review process to make this highly promising product available to physicians and patients."

SENIOR NEWS

By Katherine Urquhart Interim coordinator

Memorial Day always holds such memories for me. I can remember helping my father place flags on the veterans' graves. We would follow the parade to the cemetery for the speeches and salute just like many of the kids still do today. It's nice to see that some things don't change. What a delightful celebration Andover has every year and what a wonderful turnout. It has been so nice to see the publicity surrounding the 50th year anniversary of the end of World War II and to see so many wearing the 50th-year pins John Doherty has been distributing. If you see someone sporting the red/gold pin, take a minute to acknowledge it.

An informational forum/update on the Senior Center will be held Tuesday, May 30, at 12:30.

A volunteer recognition dinner will be held Tuesday, June 6, at 4 p.m. Location has been changed to the Andover Town House (Old Town Hall) on Main Street.

Merrill Lynch will present a lecture on "Managing Your Retirement Assets" at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, June 8, at the Senior Center.

"Understanding Your Health Care" by Letourneau's Pharmacy on Tuesday, June 13, at 11 a.m. will provide information on Medicare/Medicaid reimbursement for supplies.

Sign up for golf lessons at the Andover Country Club. Space is limited. The exercise class will begin June 6. Class is held on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 9:30 a.m. Preregistration is required.

E-911 is coming to Andover the end of June or July. The Lawrence General Hospital Nursing Alumnae, in conjunction with the Andover Police Department, plan to meet with seniors to discuss and answer all questions regarding 911. Watch the local newspaper for the time and date of the meetings.

The gift shop at the Andover Senior Center is open and offers many gift ideas.

Hand-crafted items by local craftsmen and craftswomen are featured in the consignment section. Low-cost greeting cards and slightly used current bestsellers are also available.

WHAT'S UP

Imagining a lifetime without borders

By Jamie Cistoldi, Andover High School

Have you ever considered the wonderful opportunities and fun-filled adventures that await you in studying abroad? Have you thought about learning a new culture, a foreign language, and acquiring a better global perspective and understanding? Ever imagined living in the plush pampas with its legendary gauchos in Argentina, experiencing "The Land Down Under" in Australia, participating in a popular sport in Japan such as judo and kendo, or learning about Theravadan Buddhism by experiencing it firsthand in Thailand?

An American Field Service program abroad could change your life. Living abroad for four weeks to one year will give you the independence to discover yourself as well as the country in which you will live.

What impact can an AFS experience have on your life? I participated in two AFS programs abroad: summer language study in Costa Rica and semester program in Argentina. AFS has had an impact on all aspects of my

Pre-school openings are available now

Pre-school openings have become available in one of the Andover public school classes. This class, to be housed for the first time at South School, is an integrated program serving children with special-needs and "typical" children, according to Mary French, pupil personnel administrator.

Children can flourish as individuals in this setting and be actively involved in learning experiences that provide opportunities for exploration in science, math, pre-reading, music, art and dramatic play.

Integration of children with varying abilities is a hallmark of this model. Home/school partnerships are encouraged and provide parents with an opportunity to participate.

The integrated program is staffed by a classroom teacher and instructional assistants. Full-day sessions are available Monday through Thursday, with a half-day session

Second-graders show AHS students they care about them

By Neil Fater

IT WAS prom time and Andover High School juniors and seniors were getting the same annual message.

"The message was don't drink and drive. Be safe. You're older now so you should know better," said Alexis Wasso, High School health teacher.

But this year, those words didn't just come from their parents. They also came from a group of second-graders.

Ms. Wasso's health class and Eileen Murphy's second-grade class at Bancroft School have become friends this semester by exchanging letters. As part of this exchange, the second graders also sent over some say-no-to-drugs posters before the prom.

"Our kids were telling them 'We care about you. We want you to be around for a long time,'" said Ms. Murphy.

According to both teachers, this cross-grade-level teaching exercise has showed the elementary students what's ahead of them, and taught the High School students how much the world has changed since they were 7 years old.

"It was really trying to foster an understanding between older kids in the system and younger kids in the system," said Ms. Murphy, of the program. "I'm just for building community spirit between people who never see each other."

That spirit increased a few weeks ago when the pen pals finally met each other at Andover High. The students talked about many subjects, including the second-graders' recently hatched baby chicks.

"But it wasn't a quote-unquote 'classroom lesson,' it was a lesson in life," said Ms. Murphy. "I would like to see it continue for many years to come."

While the younger students look up to the High Schoolers, Ms. Murphy said she has a music studio and teaches voice. She graduated from Hartt School of Music and has performed with Masterworks Choral, Opera Company of Boston and Cleveland Symphony Orchestra at Great Woods.

Ms. Morse is enrolled in a MBA program at Boston University and is soloist at the Christian Science Church in Andover.

Ms. Curran, a trumpeter for 15 years, will be accompanied by Susan Armstrong-Ouellette at the Great Organ. She will perform the traditional Irish tune, Believe me if all those endearing young charms and Albinoni's Sonata #11. Ms. Curran is working on her master's degree at the Boston Conservatory and pursuing a career in music education.

According to organizers, "The trustees of Methuen Memorial Music Hall take great pride in presenting these talented musicians in concert and are also proud of their tradition of presenting scholarships every year to graduating high school seniors who are going to college to major in music. The presentation of the 1995 scholarship recipients will be prior to the (June 28) Wednesday night organ recital. There will be two $750 scholarships awarded."

Methuen Memorial Music Hall is located on Route 28 in Methuen.

Admission for the concert is $5 for adults; $2.50 for children under 12. Tickets will be available at the door.

WHAT'S UP: Imagining a lifetime without borders

life. My experience will stay in my heart and soul forever and is reflected in my actions. I have learned so very much about the cultures and language of these two countries, and what I learned about myself is amazing. I returned a more mature, responsible, and learned individual. I would not change my two experiences for anything. A statement by a fellow world traveler relates my personal feelings briefly by stating, "I am not the same having seen the moon shine on the other side of the world."

Other students have had equally rewarding experiences through exchange programs. As a participant in an AFS summer language-study program (Venezuela '94), Jamie Rubin reflects on the positive impact of her experience. "Venezuela gave me an opportunity to learn and experience another culture, improve my Spanish, see another part of the world, and learn more than I ever thought possible about myself."

Marsha Johnson, AFS president of the Andover chapter and host parent, agrees that AFS has a definite impact on the lives of not only the students who go abroad, but all the people with whom they come in contact. "After an AFS experience, students tend not to see things in a black/white manner anymore. They learn of other ways of doing things; other methods of learning, other traditions, and other governments. Upon return, many times the students are disillusioned by the materialism that our culture possesses and attempt to make changes for the better."

Maya Angelou reflects on international travel and agrees on its importance by stating, "Perhaps travel cannot prevent bigotry, but by demonstrating the all peoples cry, laugh, eat, worry, and die, it can introduce the idea that if we try to understand each other, we may even become friends."

Johanna Gordon, Andover senior, spent her junior year abroad living in Asturias, Spain. "It was the best experience of my life. I think it is something that everyone should experience. It really opens up your mind to the world and to new and interesting ideas. I am now able to speak Spanish fluently, which opens up opportunities enormously - both socially and in work. New things no longer seem scary because once you have spent an entire year away from home, everything familiar to anything seems possible."

An AFS experience affects us all and it is up to us to take advantage of the opportunity to learn from the foreign students living in our country. The Andover High School community is fortunate to host an AFS student this year, Rinako, from Japan, who arrived at the beginning of the school year. Each day for her is like a new chapter in a book. Each page unfolds with new words learned, new places seen, and new people met that will touch her life now and forever.

Take time to think of the once-in-a-lifetime experiences that await you with AFS.

It is one thing to dream about life in some faroff place. It is another thing to live it.

KEEPING YOUR DEBT LEVEL UNDER CONTROL

According to a guideline that was once widely applied by financial planners, a person's debt level was acceptable as long as monthly payments on credit cards and charge accounts did not exceed 20% of take-home pay. The trouble with this rule now is that credit card companies are requiring cardholders to pay ever smaller minimum monthly payments, which can go as low as two percent. This means that cardholders may be able to meet their monthly card payments and still be shouldering a high level of debt. Thus, financial planners are becoming increasingly less likely to use a formula to gauge acceptable levels of debt. With interest rates typically running as high as 17 percent on credit-card debt, it pays to assume as little debt as possible. Credit card debt can also be insidious; by only making the minimum or near-minimum payment each month, one's credit card balance can be reduced only very little. Better to adopt an aggressive stance, where you pay off the whole balance within a finite number of months (according to your realistic ability). Let's discuss a strategy that will work for you!

MEMORIAL DAY 1995

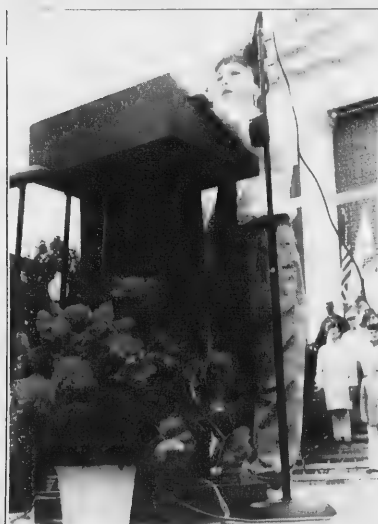

Veterans of World War II marching in Monday morning's Memorial Day parade are (from left) Louis Heliotis, Samuel Rosen, Sidney Soreff, Harry Axelrod, Harold Sodnowsky, Bill Lewis and Ted Russem. On the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II, Andover's Memorial Day ceremonies were dedicated to the men and women who fought in the war.

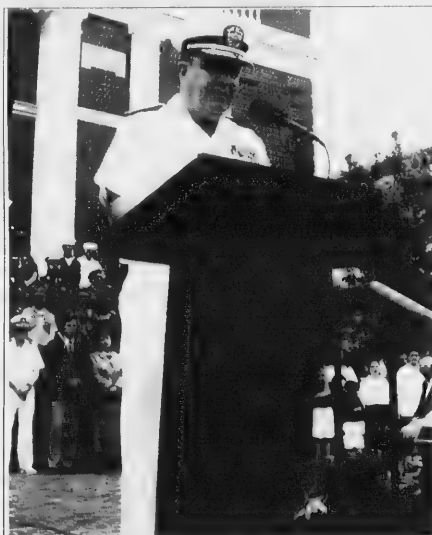

Remembering...

Despite gray skies and the threat of rain, hundreds of residents flocked to the parade and ceremonies downtown on Monday. Commemorating the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II, the ceremonies also were dedicated to three Andover servicemen who recently died - Rear Adm. James G. Prout III, USN, Richard Dulong and George Duke.

Charles Aloviseti, a student at Doherty Middle School, reads the Gettysburg Address at Monday's ceremonies. The reading of the address has been a long-time Andover tradition.

Rear Admiral Thomas Marfiak reads a speech prepared for Memorial Day ceremonies by the late Rear Admiral James G. Prout III, USN.

Residents bow for a moment of silence to remember the 60 Andover lives lost during World War II.

Accepting a town distinguished service award for Adm. Prout are (from left) brother, Terence Prout, and sisters, Sheila Prout and Moira Prout Kelleher.

SOCIAL NOTEBOOK

More than 35,000 people will gather on Boston Common Sunday, June 4, for the AIDS Action Committee's 10th annual AIDS Pledge Walk to benefit AIDS prevention efforts, services and care.

A Walk team is a group of five or more people who organize, register their name in advance to get a team number, set a team goal and raise money to fight AIDS. Teams comprised of

The 10th Annual AIDS Pledge Walk

Andover area businesses, schools, churches, synagogues, and other local organizations will be walking this year.

A partial list follows: AIDS Action of Andover, Andover High School, Electronic Filing, Genetics Institute, Quantic Communications Inc., Royal Jewelers Plus and Visiting Nurses Association Home Care.

The AIDS Pledge Walk is the largest source of non-governmental funding to fight what has become the leading cause of death in Massachusetts for people aged 25 to 44. Walk organizers hope to raise more than $2.8 million to support the efforts of the AIDS Action Committee of Massachusetts and 30 other AIDS service providers in eastern Massachusetts.

"Imagine the impact we could have if everyone who ever walked returned to the Boston Common on June 4," said Larry Kessler, executive director of the AIDS Action Committee. "It is increasingly difficult to convey the urgency of an epidemic that is now 14 years old. Some people are exhausted from the fight. Others think that everything possible is being done to fight AIDS. But it's not. People are still getting infected. People are still facing the stigma attached to AIDS. And people are still dying too young. The 10th annual AIDS Pledge Walk is the perfect opportunity to get re-energized."

The Walk will start with the city's largest aerobic warm-up at 8:15 a.m. at the Parkman Bandstand on Boston Common. More than 200 Boston-area artists, musicians and performers will line the 10K route, cheering and entertaining walkers on their way through Boston, Brookline and Cambridge, and welcoming them to a free picnic snack and concert at the Hatch Shell on the Esplanade.

Pledge sheets are available at any Bank of Boston, Fleet Bank, Lil Peach, Starbucks/Coffee Connection, Store 24, Strawberries Music & Video, and Videosmith, or by calling the AIDS Action Walkline at (617) 424-WALK.

Bank of Boston is leading the way as the "Challenge Sponsor." The Bank of Boston $500 Club Challenge will match the pledges of walkers who raise $500 or more. Walkers will earn a special edition $500 Club sweatshirt and the walk will receive up to $50,000 in matching money from Bank of Boston.

The Quota Club turned out in force Sunday, May 21, for its annual 5-mile Walk-a-thon, walking to raise money for the causes it supports. Money raised from the event has been used to purchase playground equipment for handicapped children, provide "Hearing Is Priceless" videos and education in Andover schools, and purchase sophisticated hearing devices for area children. Quota International of Andover has also supported a "safe house" for battered women and supports the Andover Senior Day Care Center.

"A History of Jazz 1895 to 1995, featuring The Six of Harts, will be held Sunday, June 25, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Franciscan Center, 475 River Road.

The afternoon of musical history and refreshments in an outdoor setting will benefit VNA HomeCare and its affiliates, Merrimack Valley Hospice and HomeCare Inc. This musical celebration reflects their 100 years of service.

The Six of Harts features Herb Pomeroy, trumpet and flugelhorn; Billy Novick, clarinet and alto sax; Paul Schmeling, keyboard; Marshall Wood, bass; Artie Cabral, drums; and Hart Leavitt, bandleader, tenor and soprano sax.

Tickets are $10 each. For more information or to order tickets, call VNA HomeCare in Andover.

The Andover Garden Club held its 67th annual meeting May 8 at the Lanam Club. The following members were elected to serve a two-year term: Joyce Ringleb, president; Rosemary Halloran, vice president; Audrey Provencal, recording secretary; Pamela Orlandella, corresponding secretary; JoAnne Lilly, treasurer; and Catherine Noyes and Constance Gilmore, directors.

Outgoing president Lola Monks was awarded the past-president pin by Ms. Ringleb.

Members were entertained with a fashion show by Vena Coco during the luncheon that followed the meeting.

Forty-one members and friends attended the Andovers Artists Guild's annual luncheon and installation of officers April 23. The luncheon was catered by Raspberries, formerly of Andover. Larry Powers, owner of the Powers Gallery of Acton, gave a talk on framing procedures.

New officers for 1995-'96 are James Cassidy, president; Diane Maroun, vice president; Dave Starkweather, treasurer; Tatia Dichiaro, corresponding secretary; and Andrea Hart, recording secretary.

Charrette of Woburn supplied each member with a gift bag of art supplies and Art Supplies Wholesale of Beverly sent sample packages of Sanford markers.

Dr. Kenneth E. Swenson will be installed as senior pastor of the First-Calvary Baptist Church in North Andover this Sunday, June 4, at 10:30 a.m.

Dr. Swenson was senior pastor of the First Baptist Church in Lima, Ohio, for the past 6½ years. For the previous 13 years, he was pastor of two American Baptist churches in Nebraska.

Dr. Swenson, who was born and raised in Worcester, received a bachelor of arts degree from Gordon College in 1970, a master of divinity degree from Bethel Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., in 1976, and a doctor of ministry degree from San Francisco Theological Seminary in 1985.

Dr. Swenson made a commitment to Christ following a Billy Graham crusade at the Boston Garden in 1964. During his years at Gordon, he sensed a call to pastoral ministry. Dr. Swenson states that, "One of the anchors in my life has been the certainty of God's call to pastoral ministry. I have had very positive experiences in the three churches I have served in the last 19 years. It is a great joy and privilege to introduce others to Jesus Christ and to see people grow in their relationship with God and in service to humankind."

The First-Calvary Baptist Church, an affiliate of the American Baptist Churches/USA, is located at the corner of Massachusetts Avenue and Chickering Road in North Andover. Sunday worship begins at 10:30 a.m.

The Religious School of Havurat Shalom is having registration for the 1995-'96 school year for students in grades 1-6. Classes are held once a week and have a low student-to-teacher ratio. Holidays, bible stories, customs and traditions and Hebrew are studied.

Havurat Shalom is a small community of families committed to providing a Jewish identity and education for its members in a manner relevant to contemporary lives.

For more information, call 470-1095.

Congregation Tifereth Israel, Andover's only Conservative synagogue, will dedicate its new Anshai Shalom Sanctuary at 501 South Main St., next Sunday, June 11, at 4 p.m. The dedication will consist of a 15-minute service and comments from the Congregation's leaders. The sanctuary has a new Ark and pews, a result of a recent merger with Congregation Anshai Shalom of Ayer.

Alan Greene, newly-elected president of the Congregation, said that one of his goals is to further expand the sanctuary to be large enough to house the High Holiday services held in the fall. The property, larger than three acres, could easily house the expansion project, organizers said.

Tifereth Israel recently held a graduation ceremony.

The three graduates, Adam Edelstein, Sarah Maltzman and Joshua Topp, comprised the first graduating class in the synagogue in many years.

The more than 100-year-old Congregation has begun a revitalization effort about six years ago, which involved a move from Lawrence to Andover. This effort has resulted in an increased membership and growth in the Religious School, which did not exist in 1989 and now has a registration of more than 50 children.

The Congregation has gone through a series of moves in that transition period, renting space at Andover churches, such as St. Augustine Church and Christ Church. Representatives of these churches as well as Andover officials will be present at the dedication ceremony.

CREATING OPPORTUNITIES FOR FIRST-TIME BUYERS

First-time buyers usually have to stretch in order to purchase their first home, which can seem like "the impossible dream". Many younger buyers can afford the monthly mortgage payments, but may have to get creative to cover the down payment and closing costs.

If you are thinking about buying your first home, contact a real estate professional. Even if your funds are limited, there may be possibilities you have never considered, such as local or federal loan programs that can get you moved in. Sellers are sometimes willing to extend a small loan to help cover closing costs in order to complete the sale. You should consider the many housing options available. If you can't afford a detached single-family home, there are beautiful condominiums and townhouses with amenities and price tags that are designed to appeal to first-time buyers.

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, talk to the experts at Century 21 Carriage House. Come by our office at 10 High Street, or give us a call at 475-1243.

THE CAPACITY OF SORROW

There is little question that grief plays a role in plumbing the depths of our sorrow and expunging it from our lives. Thus, it is best to confront one's grief honestly and directly. Otherwise, our sorrow is likely to follow us around with the hope of eventually being recognized and properly addressed. There is no reason to avoid grief in the mistaken belief that it represents an unseemly indulgence. Quite the opposite - engaging in the grieving process reflects the degree of our humanity and caring for others in the words of Henry Giles, "The capacity of sorrow belongs to our grandeur, and the loftiest of our race are those who have had the profoundest griefs because they have had the profoundest sympathies."

Whenever we face any kind of loss, we experience grief. Each of us responds differently to loss, and we may even experience different reactions as we face different kind of losses. Our reactions to grief can include physical symptoms, feelings, thoughts, and behaviors. At BURKE FUNERAL HOME, we handle funeral needs while keeping budget and type of service in mind. We can also help you with the paperwork associated with insurance and Veteran's benefits. We are conveniently located at 390 North Main Street. For more information, call 475-5200.

DOWN THE YEARS

100 years ago

June 1895

Druggist Allen wishes to announce that he has placed some chairs in his store that are at the disposal of ladies waiting for the electric cars.

Dr. William A. Alcott says: "I have been led to the conclusion by more than forty years of close observation that a disturbance of the action of the heart and sudden death therefrom is the one supreme evil resulting from the use of coffee."

Last Monday morning Leonard Saunders, one of Smith & Manning's clerks, left his horse and pung in front of J.E. Whiting's store. The horse, being unhitched, started to walk home, and probably would have got there all right but for shouts of 'Whoa' from persons near the Town House. Instead of stopping, this started him into a run down Essex St. In attempting to turn in between the Baptist Church and the store, the pung struck a post and the horse came near going down a flight of stairs at the side of the building. The seat of the pung also went through a side light of plate glass, which it will cost about $40 to replace.

Public Auction! The stock, the fixtures, the building, and the good will of the business of Joseph M. Bradley, Merchant Tailor and Men's Furnishing Goods, Main Street, Andover. A grand and splendid opportunity to step right into an old, well-established and very remunerative business, in a wealthy town of 6300 inhabitants and 600 well-to-do students. The tailors' stock is valued at about $5000, the furnishing goods at about $2000; the building and store fixtures cost over $6000 fifteen months ago. The stock is of a high character: is first-class in every respect; the very best trade in Andover. The store is one of the most elegant and handsomely fitted, as well as conveniently arranged, in the state. It is finished in solid mahogany, with plate-glass show-cases and mirrors; mosaic marble floor, and leaded stained-glass windows. The building stands right in the centre of the business of the town.

On any Sunday when the Andover Town Team's game is to be postponed, the Fire Department will blow one long blast to notify the public, at one o'clock.

The June draft quota for this town left for active duty Thursday morning. Those included in the group were: John E. Anderson Forie, 16 Chestnut street; George C. Hatch, 85 North Main street; William F. Tammany, 74 Summer street; James J. Finno, 15 Harding street; William H. Miller, 16 Canterbury street; and Loring E. Batchelder, Argilla road.

The board of selectmen have received a list of names of three eligibles for the naming of a permanent police officer, at $38.00 per week, to succeed Officer Arthur Jowett, who recently died.

On Sunday, the final paper collection before September will be held. The trucks will start out at 1 o'clock and with the assistance of the "papertroopers" from the Junior High School, every street in town will be covered.

The annual class day exercises of the Senior class of Pynchard High School will be held on Monday evening, June 11, in the Memorial Auditorium. Class day exercises will be preceded by a class supper, to be served exclusively at 6 o'clock to the members of the Senior class.

Following the supper, parents and friends are invited to attend the Class Day exercises. Following the exercises, there will be informal dancing in the gymnasium with Harold H. Phinney as master of ceremonies.

The Andover Lodge of Elks is negotiating for the purchase of Fieldstone's restaurant on South Main street. The purchase price is estimated to be in excess of $100,000. What plans will be for the building after the Elks take it over have not been firmed but it is anticipated that an addition will be built.

The Boston Bruins are of course the heroes of New England, as well as the champions of professional hockey. When the Bruins scored their overtime victory on Sunday, the Townsmen was there. We were represented by our sports writer, Rick Harrison, who is employed by a metropolitan newspaper, but covers school hockey, basketball and Little League for this paper. For the past eight weeks, Rick has been traveling with the Bruins, covering them throughout their entire Stanley Cup playoffs. He also did a special feature for the daily newspaper for which he works, on the fabulous Bobby Orr, interviewing the superstar at his Lynnfield home. Rick was part of the post-game celebration on Sunday. We hope he brought along a spare suit, since most in the locker room were dropped in the shower or covered with champagne.

A routine check of Fish Brook Reservation in West Andover Saturday night led local police to an alleged drug party, or "pot party," resulting in the arrest of several local young people. Patrolmen on routine check of the area discovered the party in progress and placed the young people under arrest.

The big news this week is the inception of a hot lunch program for Andover's "over-60" population at East Junior High. At 12:45 every school day, senior citizens may buy their lunch in the cafeteria for fifty cents. The menu is the same as for the school children and can be found in this newspaper each week.

The public safety center is about 30 miles from completion. That's right, miles, not days. The mileage is the approximate distance between Andover and where furniture for the new building is sitting awaiting termination of a labor dispute. As soon as the dispute is settled the desks, chairs and other materials for the center will be brought to Andover and placed. Until that time the police and fire departments remain in their present quarters.

June is commencement time, generally a nice time of year to pat young people on the back and wish them well, as a rule. But this year, things are different. We take cognizance of the world they are entering - one filled with turmoil, unrest, racial difference and in general, confusion. Crossing our desks these past few weeks have been announcements of college graduations, with the accompanying comment that due to campus unrest, commencement exercises were canceled and degrees would be mailed. Thus, due to that unrest, many young leaders of the future have been denied the observance of one of the more important days in their lives.

Townpeople can look forward to another Independence Day celebration this July 4th, complete with the colorful Horribles Parade, but don't count on fireworks: They remain a thing of the past in Andover. When the selectmen voted to approve the Independence Day plans this week, Selectman Gerald Silverman raised the question of fireworks, which have been banished from the town budget in recent years. Silverman said he's fighting a "losing battle" to bring fireworks back to Andover. Chairman William Dalton maintained that there's no need to provide fireworks here, because displays are offered in neighboring communities like Lawrence and North Andover.

Other summertime events approved by the board included a Wolcott Avenue block party, to be held from 4 to 8 p.m. Sunday, June 23. With the selectmen's permission, the avenue will be closed between Elm Street and Walnut Avenue for the party.

Town officials are close to filing suit against the B&M Railroad now that witnesses have been found to document the brush fires allegedly started as a B&M freight train passed through Andover on its way to Haverhill.

Deputy Chief Ernest Fluet said eyewitnesses told him they saw sparks from a train passing through town ignite dried brush along the railroad tracks. The worst of the fires left damage to land near the Mystic Warehouse and Distributing Company Inc. and Currier's Express, both at 30 Lowell Junction Road, and brought upwards of 70 firefighters, including all of Andover's available, and personnel from 14 area cities and towns. Andover fire officials estimate that between 75 and 100 acres were damaged by the blaze.

During the past five years, 135 to 150 houses have been built within the Haggetts Pond/Fish Brook watershed, at the rate of 25 to 30 new homes each year. Some 95 percent of those homes have septic tanks, according to the Board of Health chairman - "and every one of those tanks is a potential bomb sitting in the watershed."

SCOUTING NEWS

75th encampment and 10-Campment benefited from her leadership, organizers said.

Boy Scout Troop 76 of Ballard Vale held a special Court of Honor in April for three members. Jason Paolino, Eric Milligan and Jeff Hall were awarded Scouting's highest achievement, the rank of Eagle Scout. The ceremony was held in Shaw Hall at Ballard Vale United Church, which sponsors the troop.

To attain the rank of Eagle Scout, a Scout must earn 21 merit badges, 12 of which are required by the national office.

For a troop to have three scouts at one time reach Eagle is phenomenal, organizers said, and Troop 76 has had this happen twice in its 70-year history.

Rep. Gary Coon presented each Eagle Scout with a citation of merit from the State Legislature and Scoutmaster Jim Galvin read letters of congratulations from Gov. William Weld, Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci, and past presidents Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan and George Bush.

Jason Paolino, son of David and Corliss Paolino of 13 Glen Meadow Road, is the assistant senior patrol leader of Troop 76. For his Eagle project, he organized the building of a bridge and the cleaning of a stream bed at Camp Wacunda in Boxford. The camp is used by local YMCAs and had brush growing alongside the stream, including thorn bushes and poison ivy.

Eric Milligan, son of Donald and Roberta Milligan of 3 Andover St., led the cleaning, rebrazing and marking of the trail that joins the St. Francis Center on River Road in West Andover to the Bay Circuit Trail, a public trail that runs alongside the Merrimack River. The project also included the construction of erosion bar stairs on the steeper hills and sturdy rustic benches made from a fallen pine tree near the trail.

Jeff Hall, son of Gary and Susan Hall of 53 Tewksbury St., led a project that coincided with the recent remodeling of Ballard Vale United Church. He and others painted the new closets put in Shaw Hall for the Ballard Vale Preschool, and the hallway and all woodwork associated with the installation of the new elevator. The service project saved the church almost $3,000 in labor and materials.

ANDOVER'S VINTAGES: Attached to their vintage vehicles fell apart.

"I was horrified because I thought I would kill someone," he said. "I had an old 100-foot extension cord, so I wrapped it around the cab about 20 times. I tied it to the door, so I had to roll the window down to get into the car."

For two months, Mr. Fahey crawled through the window and drove his truck, while the extension cord held the body firmly together. Eventually, even he had to admit it was time to move on.

Yet, after buying a new truck he said he still hung on to the old pick-up because of its "sentimental value."

"It just sits there and I won't part with it," he said at the time. "I think someday I'm going to get it back on the road, but I'm not sure."

David Reilly of Summer Street, town collector/treasurer, can sympathize because he still owns the '68 Chevy pick-up he bought the year after he got his license. He hasn't driven it in years.

"I just love junk, that's all there is to it," he said. "At some point it does become totally unreasonable, but there is an emotional attachment."

While many share this type of attitude, others hang on to their apparent clunkers for more practical reasons.

For instance, Joe Sweeney, of Cuba Street, uses his 1982 Dodge van to visit former students. With good reason, the 80-year-old tennis and swimming instructor considered the van a cramped home-away-from-home.

In addition to having a six-inch-thick pad to sleep on, Mr. Sweeney fitted the back of his van with a propane heater, a sink with electric pump, and a full bench with cupboards and drawers.

"I insulated the walls, ceiling and floor and then I put in an icebox and two-burner stove," he said. "I had an indoor light and I used to turn the passenger seat around and I'd have my snacks. I had all the conveniences I'd need. The only problem was, the mileage was awful."

Now Mr. Sweeney sticks to driving his 1981 VW Rabbit, which gets 40 miles to the gallon.

When speaking of vintage vehicles, however, gas mileage is typically one of their owners' last concerns.

Thomas Lamson, a Central Street dentist, sticks by his spiffy 1972 Buick Skylark convertible even though it gets about the same gas mileage as a new Winnebago.

"It's great to be able to put the top down and drive home on a warm summer night. My kids grew up in the thing, so it's become a part of all of us, I think," he said. "It feels like a big boat compared to the modern cars. You feel like you're in a big hole, floating along. But that's part of the fun of it."

"These cars have a personality, that's the big difference," agreed John Dugger, a North Main Street resident who owns a 1963 Studebaker Lark. "There is something about the feel of driving one of these things. You don't just sit in it and point it and shoot it, like these modern tools."

Mr. Dugger, an architect, is interested in the design of his car, but also believes the Lark is helping to prove a theory of his. His family's other car is a Honda, and he argues that so many cars on the road today have that kind of shape that it takes longer for drivers to notice them.

"This is my third Honda. I've been rear-ended in all three of them and all three of them at a stop light," he said. "I've never been hit in my (Studebaker)."

Though Mr. Dugger is a knowledgeable car guy, not all of those who keep their older vehicles are interested in attending auto shows and spending their Saturdays working on their cars. Many old-car owners simply are interested in their auto alone, because of the memories associated with it.

In many cases it seems that car and driver grow closer as the miles – and milestones – roll by.

Arno Minkkinen, of White Oak Drive, said he drove a Saab all through Europe in the early 1970s and the memory of that car bothered him after he sold it to return to the States.

So he went out and bought two 1973 Saabs, one that he drives and one, called "Chicken Bones," that he uses for replacement parts.

"It has such familiarity to me. I mold to it and it molds to me. Whenever I go into my wife's car or another car, it feels different," he said.

"As soon as you let it stand, it will freeze. I was away from it for two months once and the brakes were all frozen," said Mr. Minkkinen of his small, red treasure. "But by driving it every day, it knows what to do. It's like an older person. Old people who keep running around, keep ticking."

Mr. Minkkinen's photography students probably like the Saab almost as much as he does, because they know a photo of it is worth something extra.

"As I'm giving the grades," admitted Mr. Minkkinen, "certainly if my car's in one of the shots, I do notice it."

People also seem to notice Helen Rose's black 1967 Camaro. Ms. Rose, owner of an Andover massage-therapy business, said she likes the car because it brings her back to the 1960s, "my time."

Ms. Rose is fortunate to have a brother-in-law who has done a lot of work on her car.

In the 10 years Ms. Rose has owned it, the car has received a whole new engine, refurbished seats, new rims, new rugs, new fenders and a small, racing-style steering wheel.

"It suits my personality. It suits me, it just seems like it's my car," she said. "I don't like the newer cars. I don't think they have the style that the older cars do."

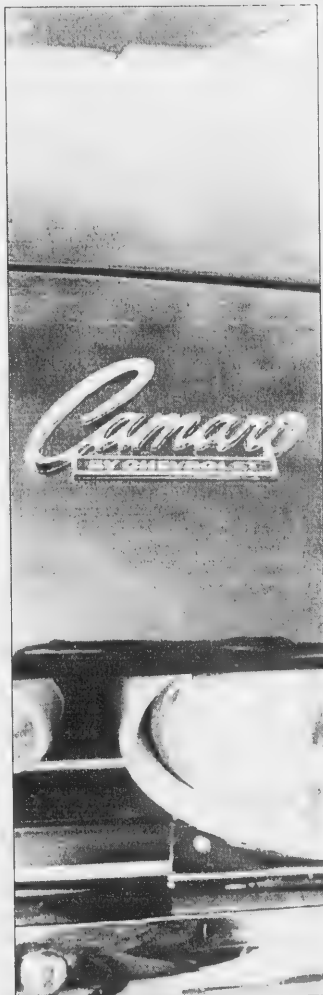

But would she ever part with it?

"Oh, I'm not going to sell it," she said at the mere suggestion. "I would just as soon spend the money to get it fixed than to buy another car. There's a lot of work that I put into it to get it to be 'mine,' I guess."

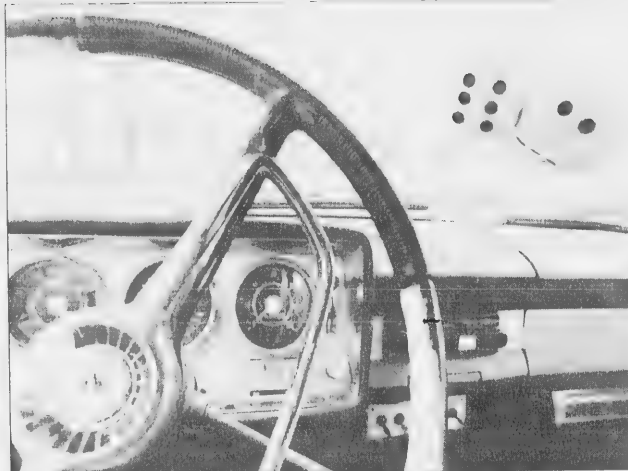

Mr. Mathias, the Dodge-convertible owner, seems to feel the same way – something that runs in his family.

"When I think back on it, I'm just like my old cousin Warren," he said. His cousin bought a Ford back in 1928 and kept it until the day he died, in 1960.

"He thought the quality of cars went down after that," said Mr. Mathias. "He had a couple of other cars in between, but he'd always sell them. 'I just don't like them,' he'd say. 'They just don't feel right.'"

Here comes Helen Rose's black 1967 Camaro.

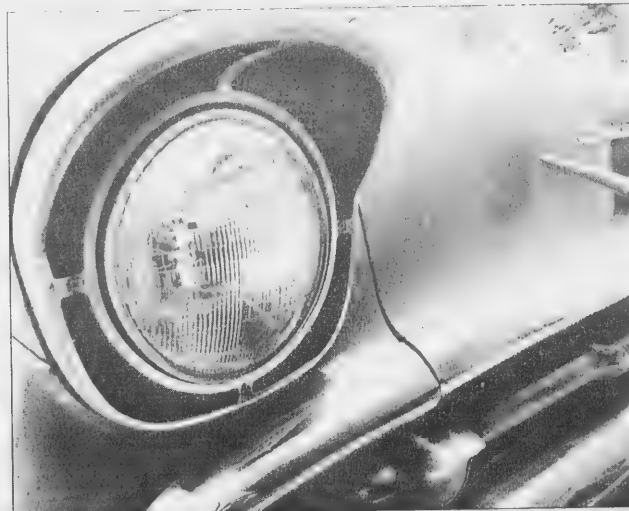

"Miles" has 115,000 of them – and fuzzy dice.

... And there goes Helen Rose's black 1967 Camaro.

West principal finalists may be named Friday

By Neil Fater

On Friday, the interview committee for the West Middle School principal position may present Dick Neal, superintendent, with the list of finalists to replace Sam Campbell, West's current principal.

According to Denise Littlefield, interim assistant superintendent and interview committee chairwoman, the interview committee will meet Friday to decide on a manageable number of names to give to Mr. Neal. Friday will be Ms. Littlefield's last day in Andover because she has accepted a principalship in Lawrence. Ms. Littlefield said a replacement chairperson will not be named.

"Right now we are interviewing the candidates that were given to use by the screening committee," she said.

The schools are also looking to hire an assistant superintendent to replace Ms. Littlefield; a coordinator for math, science and technology; and a part-time manager for the Collins Center.

School Committee's three-minute limit criticized

By Neil Fater

Calling the School Committee's three-minute time limit on unplanned citizen input an indication of "unbridled arrogance," Jim Krasnoo, Andover High school-council member, verbally attacked the committee and its new policy Tuesday night.

Three committee members stuck by the time-limit decision as a way to assure they can get to all the items on their meeting agendas.

The committee implemented the three-minutes-per-person-per-issue rule after citizens appeared at recent meetings and discussed for hours the forced resignation of Sam Campbell, popular West Middle School principal. These discussions forced other items off the committee's agenda.

"It is undemocratic to (limit speech). It is a slight slide, but almost an inevitable slide, into dictatorship," said Mr. Krasnoo.

Mr. Krasnoo noted the committee often takes a meandering path on its way toward a decision.

"I say to you, if you're going to turn an egg timer on the public," then you should also consider turning it on yourself, said Mr. Krasnoo, "and see whether or not you cook your own eggs within three minutes."

"I hope it never gets turned on again," said Tina Girdwood, committee member.

With David Birnbach absent from the meeting, Ms. Girdwood appeared to be the only committee member strongly opposed to the time limit.

"I think to use such hard terms as dictatorship would indicate that we don't want to have discussion on (important) issues, which is not true," said Dick Muller, committee member. "The intent is not to not have discussion, the intent is to be somewhat productive."

"The use of some of those tough terms is a bit much," agreed Lloyd Willey, member.

Susan Dalton said if she truly wanted to be a dictator she would have eliminated citizen input completely. Instead, she just tried to keep it to a manageable level, she said.

Plans are underway for the Collins Center revival

By Neil Fater

After years of sitting largely idle, the Collins Center may once again host a wider variety of arts performances. But on the advice of a consultant, the School Committee will take a slower and surer path toward increased use of the center.

To get the ball rolling, the committee voted Tuesday to hire a part-time manager, implement a cheaper rental-rate structure, and charge a 25-cent surcharge on each ticket sold. The 25 cents will go towards maintaining the facility and hiring the part-time manager, at a salary not to exceed $15,000.

Ellen Kraft Spear, the consultant hired by the committee, also presented the committee with four possible options on how the center can be run, but recommended the town begin slowly, in part because of the start up costs involved.

"I have to tell you that this is the first time I have an understanding of at least what the options are with the Collins Center," said Dick Muller, committee member.

The School Committee made clear its first priority is for the center to be available to the students.

"I don't want to see the High School not have full use of the Collins Center," said Mr. Muller. "It is a High School auditorium."

After discussing the options with the committee, it appears Ms. Spear will develop a four-year plan on how the Collins Center can be used.

The first two years will improve the use of the facility but otherwise keep the Collins Center as it is used now.

"The first year is all going to be trying to get everybody organized," said Ms. Spear.

By the third year, an arts academy might be phased in for use on week-ends and perhaps other times. The academy would offer classes to the community in a number of arts areas.

Ms. Spear will present her final report within the month.

Schools eying takeover of buildings maintenance

skeptical about the accuracy of the information provided by municipal maintenance.

"Yes, there's more data, but the data is just as wrong as it every was," said Lloyd Willey, committee member.

"My whole thing, and I'll say it 'til I'm blue in the face, is you can't do maintenance in these buildings from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m.," said Mark Anderson, Shawsheen Road, and a frequent face at town-board meetings.

Mr. Anderson suggested a "skeleton crew" should work during the day to handle emergencies. Then a full-crew night shift could come in for eight hours beginning at 3 p.m., after most teachers and students have gone home.

The School Committee's decision to ask Mr. Neal for a takeover plan came on the heels of a meeting regarding school maintenance attended by town, finance and school officials.

Although many officials acknowledged there are definite problems with the town's maintenance system, town and finance officials fell well short of sponsoring the school system's assumption of maintenance.

Asked recently if a major change in the maintenance structure was possible, Joanne Marden, Finance Committee member, said, "I think anything's a possibility. We know what we have isn't working very well."

There will be a joint meeting of selectmen, the Finance Committee and School Committee June 19, but Dick Neal, superintendent, said he will not have a proposal ready that quickly.

Mr. Neal told the committee, because the schools do not have any maintenance workers, he will look outside of the schools for assistance while developing this plan.

Fermenting a bit of the grape in Andover beverage at his annual bocce party in his backyard. And, of course, some of the vino disappears during the process.

"While you're processing it you have to check quality control," he said smiling.

Mr. Marotta is in excellent health, which he attributes to "good clean living and good wine."

A certified engineer, Mr. Marotta retired from his job at AT&T in North Andover 12 years ago, where he had played soccer for an in-house league until he was 55. He's worked part time the last 17 years as a tour operator for a business he runs with a partner, but seems most pleased with his title of "amateur home winemaker."

Originally from Boston, Mr. Marotta learned to make wine years ago in East Boston.

"Both my grandfathers made wine."

Both grandfathers were from Italy and his mother's father made wine and sold it door-to-door before coming to this country.

"They had their own vineyard."

After serving in the Navy in World War II, Mr. Marotta took a job in East Boston where he met Dominic Bavaro, (grandfather of two National Football League players including David Bavaro, who played for the New England Patriots last year), and he used to help Mr. Bavaro lug grapes into his cellar for winemaking.

"That's where I learned to make wine his way - the old fashioned way."

Pressing the grape

The process of winemaking starts in September with the harvesting of the grapes in California.

Mr. Marotta no longer presses the grapes himself, though he still has an old grape crusher, vat and presser. Instead, he buys fresh California wine-grape juice, which is pressed and rough filtered at the vineyards.

The grapes are crushed in California the day after they are picked, and the juice is packed and shipped the next day. It arrives by truck two or three days later at New England Fruit and Produce Center in Chelsea, (which happens to be owned by another Andoverite, Anthony Silvestro of 21 Mohawk Road). Mr. Marotta gets a call from Mr. Silvestro after the juice leaves California and usually collects his juice the day it arrives.

"So you have a nice product to begin with."

Some of the old timers still insist on crushing and pressing their own grapes, and for them, the produce center also has truckloads of fresh California grapes. But Mr. Marotta doesn't see the need for the extra work.

"This is the latest in wine making. It's a lot better than picking and crushing the grapes, which I did for years," Mr. Marotta says.

Mr. Marotta usually buys half a dozen six-gallon buckets each of a couple types of wine-grape juice - Pinot Chardonnay, French Columbar, Burgundy or a number of others. Once back at home, he allows 12 to 24 hours for the wine to come up to room temperature because it is shipped cold. He places a wooden block under each bucket to get it off the floor to maintain a uniform temperature. He then drills a hole in the top of each bucket and adds a special packet of dry wine-makers' yeast. The hole is plugged with a "bubbler," which vents the CO2 produced in the fermenting process without allowing air in. Exposure to oxygen interferes with the process and ruins the wine.

The wine then sits for a minimum of six months, although Mr. Marotta will start "testing" the brew after about four months.

The wine then needs to be filtered to give it clarity and stability.

Filtering

Mr. Marotta's filtration system consists of a small pump and two filters.

"The first one is a pre-filter to remove the coarser particles."

The second is a very fine filter to take out micro-organisms - bacteria and yeast - that are part of the fermentation process. Removing the biological matter stabilizes the wine so it will not change once it is bottled, giving it a greater shelf life and increased clarity.

"This produces wine that is the same stability that you would find in a package store."

Wine that is not filtered for the bacteria should be consumed within a year, since the complex organic reactions will continue and will change the wine. Byproducts of the fermentation process, called lees, will also continue to settle in the unfiltered wine after it is bottled.

"Because I have the filtration system, I can store the wine longer."

He has a 1986 Cabernet Sauvignon, and others nearly that old.

"That's aging. Usually a wine like Cabernet benefits from four to six years of aging," and can be aged longer, he says.

The wine is pumped from the original buckets through the filters and into a 54 liter demijohn, or glass flask. A mixture of sodium metabisulfite and either filtered or tap water is used to sterilize all the hoses, bottles and other equipment used in the distilling process.

"It can be mixed with tap water. It's just that much less debris in the tap water that has to be filtered out later."

The minute amounts of sodium metabisulfite that get into the wine also serve as a preservative.

Mr. Marotta's filtration system is made by Millipore Corp. in Bedford, and cost about $1,000 several years ago. But a filtration system, and certainly such an elaborate one, is not essential for home wine making.

A wine maker can use a process called racking, which will clarify but not stabilize the wine. Racking simply involves separating the wine from the lees. This is done by siphoning the wine into a second flask, leaving the lees behind. This process should be done every month or so with unfiltered wine, and can even be done just prior to serving. Surplus wine, from one or two gallons held out of the same batch, should be used to top off the flask so no air is left in the bottle.

The bottom line on filtering is, the greater amount of filtering, the greater the clarity and stability of the finished product.

Bottling

The wine can be bottled at any time after the six months and it has been either filtered or racked.

Mr. Marotta has a corking machine and the bottling is again a very simple process. He starts a siphon, (by sucking wine through a hose, which he says is his favorite part of the job), then fills as many bottles as he needs, corking each one and adding a label. Again, after wine has been siphoned from the larger bottles, it is best to top off the flask with surplus wine to remove air.

Temperature, humidity and sunlight all affect the quality of the wine.

Mr. Marotta and his wife, Blanche, moved to town in 1960. In 1968 they put an addition on the house so they could have a family room upstairs and he could have his wine cellar downstairs. He maintains the temperature in the cellar between 50 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit, and there is little sunlight and moderate humidity.

Mr. Marotta's finished product is 11.5 to 13 or 14 percent alcohol by volume, roughly the same as the 12.5 percent of commercial wine. Mr. Marotta uses only the natural fructose that is in the grapes, and does not add sugar to increase alcohol content.

Tax free

As stated at the beginning, Mr. Marotta is not a bootlegger.

Tax-free production of homemade wine is monitored by the U.S. Treasury Department, but home winemakers who produce less than 200 gallons of the grape a year are not required to report it.

"It's tax free so it's not to be sold," Mr. Marotta says.

In 1993, Mr. Marotta produced a video, Successful Home Winemaking with fresh California Grape Juice, describing his winemaking process. The 30-minute video is available from New England Fruit and Produce Center, at Giulio's market in Boston's North End, or from Mr. Marotta himself. The video comes with a pamphlet that goes into more detail on some processes, such as racking.

Mr. Marotta will also speak to groups about wine making, where he will show his video, then answer questions while people sample his wine.

Good drinking wine

Despite Mr. Marotta's obvious experience with the grape, he doesn't get wrapped up in the fancy terminology expected at wine tastings. He doesn't go for what individual fruits or woody textures are in the juice, or whether they are full-bodied, subtle or light on the palate.

"If it's good tastes good - that's fine."

What will be the response?

It is becoming obvious that Dick Neal, newly appointed superintendent of schools, is not going to give any sort of meaningful response, verbally or in writing, to petitions from students and parents regarding the reasons for Sam Campbell's announced departure. Some would call his lack of action stonewalling. Apparently, the best those students, parents and other concerned citizens can hope for is that Mr. Neal will respond with his actions in his appointment of Dr. Campbell's replacement at West Middle School.

What kind of administrator he appoints to take the helm at West may be the only answer those students and parents will get. And that answer could come as soon as next week, since the interview committee may hand him a list of finalists tomorrow, Friday.

Will the successful candidate possess the qualities parents and students admired and respected in Dr. Campbell? Will he or she adhere to the guidelines Mr. Neal himself set for the hiring of a new middle-school principal? If the candidates recommended do not possess those qualities or meet those standards, will he expand the search to find a candidate who does?

Mr. Neal will likely act within the next two weeks. He has said he wants to have a new principal selected by early June.

Mr. Neal recently seems to have offered an olive branch to some groups by hearing what they had to say. We hope his actions will show he listened that the efforts made by parents, students, West Middle School Council members and others will not have been in vain.

Lose the timer

School Committee members should throw out the timer limiting citizens' comments to three minutes at their meetings. They should quit stonewalling parents, students and others and open up the process. Regardless of whether they had anything to do with the Sam Campbell fiasco at West Middle School, members should be taking the lead in helping students, parents and others find answers, rather than battenning down the hatches.

It is the stakeholders in Andover's school system - students, parents, those looking forward to sending children to public schools, taxpayers and others who have an interest and a vital stake in maintaining a superior public school system - who have lost out so far.

Parents and others will get their opportunity for input at the March 25, 1996 elections.

What to say to someone with cancer

By Perry Colmore

What can a person who's fighting cancer say to those who haven't experienced it? A lot.

If you'll stick with me, I think I can help take away some of the mystique of fighting cancer, give people some lines to say to those who are dealing with the disease, and maybe we'll all benefit. In the meantime, if you are someone who has not experienced cancer and you have something to say those who have, speak up. I will listen and I am sure there are scores of us who will.

I am fighting breast cancer. I like to think I no longer have it. I'm having chemotherapy in case any stray cells escaped surgery and are "out there" somewhere in my body, undetected. I have had three of six treatments and I am doing very well with them. Sometimes I feel tired, or a little sick, but I am working full time with the exception of the day I receive chemotherapy, which is once every three weeks. I usually am feeling upbeat and grateful to be alive. Sometimes I am discouraged because I get tired and can't always keep up with my before-cancer pace.

For me, the most frightening time was during diagnosis, the first three or four weeks when I was going through tests and surgery, several surgeries. During that time I thought cancer would soon kill me so I was usually frightened. When a well-meaning person would tell me what to do, or what I should be feeling, or somehow imply he or she knew what I was going through, it didn't help. It hurt. It took away from what I was feeling, which was very real.

A good thing to say during this time would be whatever the cancer patient is saying. If I said, "I am worried because I don't know which treatment to choose," you could say, "It must be hard not to know what to do. Is there any way I could help? Could I do some research for you?"

If I said, "I'm furious I have to deal with this," you could say, "It's so unfair you have to have cancer."

Sounds simple, almost simpleton, right? Do it. It's what the person needs. Listen to the patient. Say what she says.

When I was in the hospital once and feeling terrible, my best friend, Robin, came one morning to visit. I told her how terrible I felt. She listened. Then while I slept, she answered my phone, telling callers I couldn't speak at the moment, and could she take a message? When she wasn't answering the phone, she was reading a book, so I didn't feel like I had to talk with her, but I knew she was there. That was comforting.

People who have offered to cook meals have helped a lot. It means I can spend more quality time with my husband, time that otherwise would be spent cutting up vegetables, grocery shopping or fretting about fixing dinner. You have just so much energy when you're fighting cancer. It's good when you can spend it on the things that count most: being with your family and friends and doing the things that make you feel like life does go on, including going to work.

Offering specific help is good. If someone says, "What can I do for you?" it's a bit overwhelming and sometimes difficult to think of an answer. I do, however, know some people who have kept a list near the phone of things that need doing, and they are brave enough to read the next item on the list to the person offering help. I found that difficult.

If a person said, "I am going to the grocery store today. Can I bring you something?" that was very helpful. That way I felt more like I wasn't making that person go out of his way.

Admiral James Prout III wrote of fallen heroes

The following is the complete text of the speech written by Rear Admiral James Prout III and delivered by Admiral Thomas Marfiak during Monday's Memorial Day ceremonies. Adm. Prout was to be the speaker Monday, but died in a plane crash last week. Adm. Marfiak, a friend of Adm. Prout's, delivered the speech in his stead.

Adm. Marfiak: Mayor, city leaders, members of the Prout family, ladies and gentlemen. Memorial Day is the beginning of summer. School is almost over. We break out the backyard cookers, put the boat in the water and begin to look for our swimsuits; gardeners look forward to a series of blooms and hope for a good crop of tomatoes. But we pause here today to remember the real reason for this special day; today we commemorate our fallen, and honor those who served the cause of freedom at home and abroad. They are our heroes.

Thank you for coming out today to remember the men and women who have served the United States of America. For many, they gave the last full measure of devotion. Because of them, we live in a great country, a nation that represents a bright beacon of freedom across the oceans of the world.

It is a great privilege to stand here today but it is one I would have gladly forgone. As a child, I too marched in Memorial Day parades in Connecticut. I never thought that one day would find me in another town, much like my own, speaking on the issue of patriotism and our special heroes. You must know that I asked to come here today because one of my own heroes has just joined up in heaven.

Rear Admiral Jay Prout was my closest friend. We had discussed his trip, his real and genuine excitement at coming home again (He had such an infectious grin). And so, in a way, he has - because this speech is his - every word of it. As a good naval officer must, he had written it out before departing on what proved to be his final mission. When you hear his words, think about the continuity of service and sacrifice they represent. Having seen some of Andover, flags flying in the late afternoon light, I can see from whence he derived his deep and abiding patriotism.

I will now share Jay's words with you.

Adm. Prout's speech: Mr. Doherty, thank you.

Mr. Lewis, members of the Patriotic Holiday Committee, thank you for inviting me to speak today.

Veterans, most especially World War II veterans in this 50th anniversary year of your sacrifice and victory; family members of veterans, most especially those related to soldiers, sailors, marines, airmen or merchant mariners who gave up their lives in the service of our country; fellow townsmen; this sailor is humbled by the privilege of returning to my hometown, to speak on your behalf, in honoring the memory of the heroes of my youth, and the inspiration for my military service, our beloved war dead.

The commemorations earlier this month of the 50th anniversary of Victory in Europe, and the 50th anniversary Victory of Japan commemoration ceremonies scheduled for Pearl Harbor the first week in September, have brought this Memorial Day into sharper focus than has been the case in recent years.

This will not be the last time these World War II veterans muster to salute their fallen comrades. Family members and friends will feel the pain of their loss until the day they leave this earth. But this is likely to be the last time that collectively, we, as citizens of this town and of this nation, will pay special and specific tribute to the 60 men from Andover, shipmates, comrades in arms, buddies, husbands, fathers, sons, brothers, nephews, cousins, sweethearts, classmates and teammates who were killed in action in World War II or who died as a consequence of that conflict.

I ask you to join me, as well, in remembering and saluting those wounded in that war, both physically and psychologically, some so grievously they have lived the remainder of their lives in great pain or distress in our veterans hospitals.

Similarly, please take a moment to think of, thank and comfort those family members and friends who suffered the loss of a loved one.

Before moving to Andover when I was 7, I had spent much of my life in my grandfather's home in Belmont. It was a typical lower middle-upper working class home. My grandparents were first generation born Irish Americans. My grandfather left school after the eighth grade to support his family. My grandmother was the first among her extended family to graduate from high school, preceding Patrick Ewing by a few years as the star basketball player and team captain at Cambridge's Ridge Technical High School. My grandparents never owned nor drove a car. As with most couples in those circumstances, their hope, pride, and ambition was wrapped up in their children.

By the time I was born in January 1944, their oldest daughter, my godmother; Aunt Margaret, had finished secretarial school, gone to Washington to work in the war effort and met and married a Navy Chief Petty Officer who had survived the sinking of the battleship Oklahoma, which had capsized at Pearl Harbor. My mother, the second child, after a year in college, had married her high school sweetheart, when my dad got temporary respite from North Atlantic convoy duty for his mother's funeral.

Fifty years ago today both Dad and Uncle Keith were serving in the Western Pacific. Mom and Aunt Margaret were back living with their parents, and the house in Belmont proudly displayed a gold star in the window at the foot of the staircase. The family's pride and joy, my Uncle Paul - class secretary of the Belmont High School class of 1943, top student, soccer team halfback, hockey captain and twice Greater Boston Interscholastic league all star defenseman, and the right-handed pitching star of the state high school and American Legion State baseball champions, a happy, handsome boy, a beloved son, brother, brother-in-law, classmate and friend - had been killed by German mortar fire in the Ardennes in December 1944.

I was, of course, too young to be immediately aware of the tragedy that had befallen the family, where I reigned supreme as the first grandchild. But, I was there when the dreaded telegram was delivered, when the simple, eloquently kind letter came from Paul's company commander, when the ship returning his body from the American Cemetery in Belgium docked in New York, when the family held his wake in the living room, when he was reburied in the Belmont town cemetery. I was there on many a Sunday when my grandparents had friends or family drive them out to care for the grave, plant fresh flowers and say a prayer. I was there when high school teammates came calling to the house where they had known only laughter and hope for the future, and now could only remember, offer consolation, and speculate about what might have been.

I was there for the memorial Masses at St. Joseph's Church. I was there when the town of Belmont dedicated the new Belmont High School field house in Paul's name; and I was there with my grandparents for many a Memorial Day ceremony such as this.

I was there when my grandfather lovingly pasted mementos of these events in a scrapbook, when my grandmother opened the drawer in her dresser and sighed as she fingered the baseball uniforms, the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps cap, and the high school graduation watch they had saved so long to buy. And I was there when my grandparents kissed me goodbye with looks of speechless longing, as I left for my own combat tour in 1969.

I have personalized this memorial, not to single out one soldier, who wasn't from Andover, but to lead us all away from the tone which these ceremonies occasionally take on - the collective, all-too easily mechanical, "thanks for dying for us, whoever you are" tip of our hat to a nameless, faceless group who died in some long-ago war.

Each of Andover's 60 killed in action, each of our severely wounded, every one of our Andover veterans' comrades who suffered similar fates, earned their right to an individual personalized memorial I can only symbolize here today.

I treasure the memory of my shipmates who died in combat. Not a week goes by that I don't think of Bubba Brewton's lopsided smile, miserable basketball skills, and quiet courage, and leadership by example; I think of picking up the remains of Bruce McFarland's lifeless body, just hours after we'd shared a root beer, of my last conversation with Jim Thames, Doug Vaughan, Dick Pershing, Derrick Brooks and Vinny Lee.

Not a day went by that my grandparents didn't think of their son.

Our Andover veterans and other Andover families harbor and nurture equally vivid personal memories. For them, our war dead and maimed are individual faces, treasured moments, a special look, a never-repeated touch.

Collectively, on behalf of all your fellow townsmen, on behalf of a grateful nation, we who gather here today with you, thank you for your sacrifices. A sacrifice, which in a moment of great national peril, preserved our country, and its great hope for all on this earth. Your pride in your own service and sacrifice, your pride in those with whom you served, your pride in those whom you lost, is our pride and inspiration.

God bless our veterans, God bless our war dead, God bless and comfort their families. God bless and protect our servicemen and women serving around the world today, and God bless and preserve the United States of America.

Adm. Marfiak: Jay's eloquent words say it all - let me just add this note. Heroes are all around us. They serve in many ways, large and small, each of them lighting candles in the darkness until the light of freedom drives darkness away.

On our first National Memorial Day, in 1868, General James Garfield summed up what we all feel inside when we contemplate the sacrifices made to keep us free. He said, "If silence is ever golden, it must be here beside the graves of men whose lives were more significant than speech and whose death was a poem of music which can never be sung."

"With words we make promises, plighted faith, praise virtue. We do not know one promise these men made, one pledge they gave, one word they spoke, but we do know they summed up and perfected, by one supreme act, the highest virtues of men and citizens."

"For love of country, they accepted death and made immortal their patriotism and their virtue."

My charge to you is this: We must remember them all, including Rear Admiral Jay Prout; no tip of the hat for these heroes; we must hold them dear in our hearts and remember them in our prayers. And when we look up to see old glory flying proudly over the green, know that they too rejoiced to see the red, white and blue colors in the sun. It is our task to carry those colors on, to keep them always flying with honor. No one could ask for a prouder or more fitting memorial.

Thank you all. Andover got bigger this week. It reaches all the way to Point Loma.

A community event

Editor, Townsman:

Last year I had the pleasure to participate in a very unique community/athletic celebration. It was the 24-Hour Relay Challenge.

I was on the Town Trotters – a team made up of selectmen, town department heads, members of the Service Club of Andover and friends. We did the event in style – a Winnebago to protect us from the elements, health food like carrot and celery sticks, and of course, the legendary lobster thermidor.

It was truly a community-wide event as I had the opportunity to run, jog and then walk with Andoverites, young and old alike, who I had only known in a more formal setting of meetings in the town offices. Nothing like running with someone to really get to know them.

It was also athletically inspiring to share the track with members of the Andover High School football, basketball and track teams. In fact, I was so enthused, I ran a 6:42 mile – my fastest in five or six years. I am looking forward to better than that this year.

I am excited about this year's event. It provides us with another opportunity to come together and celebrate on June 10 and 11, and to form relationships at the Lovely Field that will carry beyond the weekend and the track and help us through the rest of the year in our various capacities of improving the quality of community life in Andover.

More facts on Poor Street condo

Editor, Townsman:

I would also like a chance to address the facts of the proposed Poor Street condominium development. Firstly, the residents of Andover should be made aware that this home (circa 1830) is the only remaining Frye Village (previous name of Shawsheen) home remaining. It was built by Joseph Poor, a member of one of the founding families of Andover, and was used during the Civil War in the underground railroad. I am skeptical that this 165-year-old farm house will survive the blasting required to build this project.

It has been stated the development meets "current building laws" including height restriction, which is 35 feet. Please be aware, however, that the lot is approximately five feet higher than street level and closer to 10 feet higher in some areas. Conceivably, when the trees are not in bloom, this structure will be visible from Shawsheen Square. It will be taller than any of the other homes in the neighborhood.

The design of the structure was also discussed as "compatible" with the existing neighborhood. This statement is the single opinion of the owners and the developers. Fortunately, it was not the opinion of the Planning Board or the overwhelming turnout of Andover residents.

The project has been described as being between a condo development and a rented duplex home. These statements are hardly an accurate description of the neighborhood. The "condo development" is comprised of free standing, luxury town houses, set back from the road, not visible from the street and beautifully landscaped. The "duplex home" is a beautiful brick home which looks like a single family residence and is consistent with other homes in the neighborhood in terms of architecture, detail and age. The owners are in a state of transition and until very recently were living in the home.

The land was rezoned from single residence to apartment in 1984 at Town Meeting. Historically, and as noted by the Planning Board in 1984, the north side of Windsor Street has always served as the line between commercial and residential housing. It is a myth to me why 66 Poor St. was rezoned along with Hunters Ridge and the Grasso property (farmhouse next to the pond) since it is clearly north of the line. There are no zoning laws stopping the development from turning into all rental units. The land should be rezoned to single residence. To allow this type of development further north will open the floodgate to more extensive development all through the neighborhood.

Let's call this project what it is – an apartment building, clearly visible from the street, 35-plus (feet) high, right in the heart of brick Shawsheen. As someone who grew up in Shawsheen I am adamantly opposed to any development of this kind.

Confused by housing article

Editor, Townsman:

I have just concluded a third reading of "Elder Tenants Council" by Alix Driscoll (May 25 Townsman, page 52), and I am still confused. I am not sure of its purpose. Is it meant to glorify the Council and politicians or help the tenants?

Were any tenants interviewed at Chestnut Court, Grandview Terrace or Stowe Court? By the way, where is Merrimack Court? Many of the individuals have lived in the Andover Housing Authority units for many years. It might be worthwhile knowing their views on this matter.

Nothing in this world is perfect. A supreme being couldn't suit some people. As tenants of the Andover Housing Authority, we are physically comfortable and enjoy pleasant surroundings.

As noted in the Driscoll article, some of these buildings have been here since the late fifties and have withstood the winds and storms very well – not a bad record.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

UNDER EXAMINATION

An initial chiropractic exam begins with questions about the patient's complaints and inquiries about personal and family medical history. The patient's history of physical trauma, occupational activities, exercise routine, diet, and lifestyle habits are also elicited. Then, the physical examination begins with observation of the patient's posture and gait and a more thorough analysis of the patient's posture by virtue of an orthopedic examination, including range of movement of the entire spine to determine joint function. Static palpation is then undertaken to determine possible misplacement of bones and to assess the texture of muscles, joints, and tendons. The evaluation generally concludes with a neurological exam, palpation of the joints, and X-rays.

Chiropractic is a system of natural health care. It involves adjusting the spinal column to correct the cause of the dis-ease. At DeLORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, the examination you receive will be carried out with tests that will tell us what your problem is so that we can start to help you. We're located at 15 Central Street, where we emphasize good preventive health measures by providing good balance and harmony in the total health of the body. Please call 475-5042 to schedule an appointment.

P.S. The neurological part of the chiropractic exam includes reflex testing and is undertaken to assess nerve function.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

TONGUE-TIED

It may be a matter of interest to learn that the speech-defying expression "tongue-tied" has a basis in medical fact. Ankyloglossia, its medical term, has to do with the thin web of skin that anchors the tongue to the bottom of the mouth. If this web of skin, known as the frenulum, is attached too close to the tip of the tongue, it will inhibit the tongue's normal movement to the point where talking becomes difficult. This inability to move the tongue to the positions necessary to articulate normal speech is described as "tongue-tied". Once the problem is diagnosed, correction is usually a simple matter of clipping the frenulum to give the tongue more freedom to move normally.

If you would like more information on the frenulum and its role in oral health, or if you have any questions about your teeth and gums, we invite your call at 475-2431. We bring you this column in order to tell you about dentistry and the many ways it can contribute to your overall health & well-being. Here at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93, we want you to look & feel your very best. Come see a truly professional dental office Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-6, & by appointment.

P.S. Ankyloglossia can also create tension on the gums that can lead to gum problems.

Nicholson earns All-America honors at nationals

By Rick Harrison

Scott Nicholson earned All-America honors, one of five members from Team Massachusetts to attain that distinction, as he helped the Bay State squad to a strong showing at the 10th annual National High School Gymnastics Championships held last weekend at the California Sports Center in San Jose, Calif.

The top eight finishers in each of six men's and four women's events, and the top eight all-around scorers, achieved All-America status.

Nicholson, the reigning state champion on the rings, placed eighth in the nation in his specialty with an 8.85 score.

Joining Nicholson in the exclusive club were Chris Taylor of Burlington, a double All-America after placing seventh on the rings (9.0) and tied for eighth all-around (49.90), Scott Champagne of Attleboro (vaulting), Renee Sestilo of North Andover (vaulting) and Kateri Hauck of Reading who finished fifth in the country in the women's division all-around competition.

"The excitement of the entire experience affected some of our gymnasts," said Andover High men's varsity gymnastics coach Steve Sirois, who served as a Team Massachusetts assistant coach.

"This was elite level and our kids were competing side-by-side with some future Olympians.

"Our Massachusetts kids gave it all they had, hanging in with the top gymnasts in the country.

"They conducted themselves admirably both on and off the floor. The five Andover kids were among the most popular. They buddied up with kids from New York and Indiana. If they gave out medals for socializ-

Scott Nicholson, a senior at Andover High School, captured All-America honors, one of five members from Team Massachusetts to attain that distinction. He competed at the National High School Gymnastics Championships held last weekend at the California Sports Center in San Jose, Calif.

ing we would have won a few," joked coach Sirois. "I think Bobby (Ellis) broke a few hearts.

"Seriously, I don't think we could have asked for any finer representatives of the commonwealth," added Sirois.

Scores and more

Nicholson added a 7.9 score on the parallel bars, while Bob Ellis just missed qualifying for the finals in vaulting with an 8.5, scored 7.9 in floor exercise and 7.6 on rings.

Barry Dubois competed on pommel horse and scored a 5.9.

Both Andover girls were bitten hard by the injury bug.

All-Scholastic Irene Shui made the trip but was unable to compete because of a bad back.

Marcie Lutsch suffered elbow and ankle injuries during the vaulting trials and was sidelined for the balance of the meet.

Team Massachusetts finished third in a field of 16 women's teams, while Massachusetts was fourth in an eight-team men's field.

Pre-meet figures on the number of athletes competing were inflated.

"There are 43 states in the nation that have high school gymnastics," explained Team Massachusetts women's co-head coach Tommy Thomson of Sudbury. "Most states were represented by at least one athlete, but there were only 24 full teams (16 women's, eight men's). That translated to 112 gymnasts including more than 60 young women."

Texas swept both teams titles.

unbelievable stuff," noted Sirois.

The athletes and their families, who paid their own way to the west coast, stayed at the Hyatt Regency in San Jose, a northern California community located in the heart of the Silicone Valley.

"The kids had the run of the place," said coach Sirois. "There were a few barbecues and parties, and on the last day they had a social and pizza blast for the athletes."

"The facility itself (California Sports Center) was enormous and very impressive," said coach Thomson. "There were multiple gym and pool areas for the kids."

Andover relatives making the trip with their offspring were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Ven Shui, Amanda Lutsch and Marcie's grandmother Priscilla Hood, and Barry Dubois' dad.

The competition was held over two days, Friday and Saturday.

Half the Andover crew returned on Sunday, while the other half remained an extra day and flew home on Monday.

"I'm just sorry that it's over. I'm going to miss the kids," noted coach Sirois.

"We're going to have a reunion some time in July at (Newton North coach) Dave Simkins' house, but after that everyone will head their separate ways.

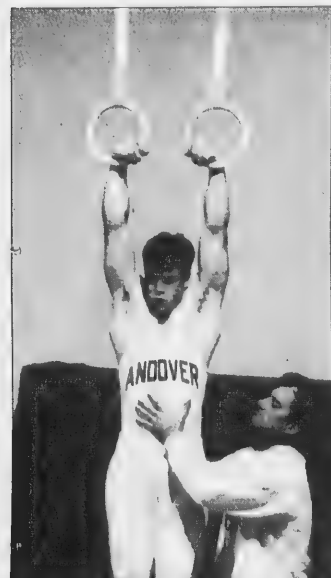

"Most of the kids on the Massachusetts team are going to excellent colleges."

Next year the 1996 High School Nationals are scheduled to be hosted by Springfield College.

Sirois' own Andover men's squad, which tied for second place in the All-State Meet back in February, will have its annual breakup awards party this Sunday at the Knights of Columbus.

Andover High School men's gymnastics coach Steve Sirois helps Scott Nicholson work out on the rings. Mr. Sirois served as a Team Massachusetts assistant coach at the nationals last weekend.

The Lone Star State's women scored 110.00 points to edge past second place Pennsylvania (106.25) and third place Massachusetts (105.775).

The men's division settled into a tight three-way struggle between champion Texas (164 points), second place New York (162.25) and third place Illinois (161). Massachusetts was a distant fourth at 135.05, just ahead of fifth place Nebraska (131).

Taylor, in addition to his 9.0 on rings, scored 8.9 and reached the finals in vaulting, had an 8.55 on parallel bars, 8.3 in floor exercise, 7.7 on high bar and 7.45 on pommel horse en route to his 49.90 all-around.

Well-supported

Team Massachusetts was No. 1 in the country in terms of support and organization.

"We had the largest contingent (42 people)," said coach Thomson. "When one of our kids did something exceptional the applause and cheering was tremendous."

"Scotty (Nicholson) received a standing ovation from the whole crowd, not just our people, halfway through his rings routine," said coach Sirois. "He wowwed 'em. But he was so pumped up he ran out of gas near the end."

Bob Ellis hit all his vaults, and scored career highs in his events, but the competition was extremely tough.

"It's a caliber of competition our kids really haven't seen before, especially the ones that don't belong to club teams," said Thomson.

"It was an eye-opener. We saw some

Sullivan's volleyball team wins Alliance for 3rd year

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High men's varsity volleyball team came within one victory of achieving a rare athletic feat, a perfect regular season, before Boston Latin Academy edged the Golden Warriors 2-1 in their final pre-State Tournament match.

"I think our guys went into the match a little nervous about it (perfect season)," said coach George Sullivan. "After we lost the first game we seemed even more uptight. We never really played the kind of volleyball we're capable of, although Latin Academy is an excellent team (17-2 record)."

"Everyone dreams about a perfect season," said Sullivan. "It would have been a terrific accomplishment, but in the long run the loss may do us good. Better now than in the tournament."

Prior to the Latin defeat Andover completed another undefeated North Alliance campaign, beating St. John's Prep and Methuen 2-0 to finish 14-0 in league play.

Those results left AHS at 19-1 overall and 99-30 in the seven-year existence of the program.

The State Tournament pairings were scheduled to be announced last night, with Andover expected to be a top seed.

The Golden Warriors should receive a first round bye and open play in the quarterfinals within the next few days.

Defending State champ New Bedford and Latin Academy are among the teams expected to challenge Andover for the state title.

Conference honors

Senior Captain Tim Foley, a definite All-Scholastic candidate, was named Most Valuable Player of the North Alliance in recent voting of the eight league coaches.

Andover athletes joining MVP Foley on the All-Conference team are senior Captain Sean Croteau and senior Aaryn Schmuhl.

Named first-team All-Stars were senior first-year standout Matt Gibson and junior Joe Hogarty.

George Sullivan, whose teams have won the North Alliance championship three straight years and five times in the last seven seasons, was named league Coach-of-the-Year for the third consecutive spring and fifth time since 1989.

Andover 2 Methuen 0

The locals got off to their customary slow start, falling behind tourney qualifier Methuen 7-1 in the first game before catching fire en route to a 15-9, 15-7 sweep.

It marked the 16th 2-0 victory in 20 matches for Andover, which edged the Rangers 2-1 in their first encounter on May 3.

"Our serving was outstanding, right on the money," said Coach-of-the-Year Sullivan. "We made only four service errors (54-for-58) in the match. We also committed only three passing errors and were in control the entire second game."

"Tim Foley was crushing the ball," added the coach.

Foley finished with five kills, Sean Croteau had eight kills, Matt Gibson five kills, Joe Hogarty three kills, and senior outside hitter Andy Shen played an excellent all-around match.

Latin Academy 2 Andover 1

The Golden Warriors, losing only their second regular season match in two years

(New Bedford last season), dropped the first game, 15-10, won the second, 15-13, and lost the third by the same 15-10 count.

"We never got into the groove," lamented coach Sullivan. "They had several big hitters and leapers that had us a bit intimidated. We tipped the ball too much and Latin covered our tips well. We also gave them too many free hits."

"We made a number of hitting errors, driving the ball out of bounds too many times," added Sullivan.

In Andover's defense, powerful host Latin Academy's only two losses this season were to New Bedford with both matches going the full three-game distance.

Sean Croteau finished with five kills, MVP Foley had four and Matt Gibson only two.

Andy Shen and Aaryn Schmuhl were cited for strong blocking and defense.

Latin jumped to a 5-0 lead in the decisive third game. Andover pulled even, 5-5, and it was seasaw until Latin broke open an 11-10 game with four straight match-ending points aided by three Andover passing errors.

Andover 2 St. John's Prep 0

"Everything fell into place perfectly for our final home match," noted coach Sullivan. "We had a big crowd, including quite a few alumni players, and everyone was pumped."

When the junior varsity team opened the evening by avenging its only defeat of the season with a 15-6, 15-9 romp, it set a tone that continued throughout the varsity match at the Dunn Gymnasium.

The Golden Warriors bolted to 7-0 and 8-0 leads in the two games, and eventually continued on for resounding 15-2 and 15-3 victories.

This was also the annual "Senior Night," and coach Sullivan followed tradition by starting an all-senior lineup and playing the nine 12th graders as much as possible.

"Everyone came through. We were doing jump serves and running crosses and tandems. Matt Gibson and Tim Foley were hitting extra hard. They took the air out of the ball," said coach Sullivan.

The winners made only four serving errors, connecting on 41-of-45, and had five service aces.

Foley was 11-for-14 hitting, with seven kills, while Gibson and Sean Croteau contributed six kills each, Joe Hogarty five kills and senior outside hitter Andy Shen five kills.

Aaryn Schmuhl was cited for strong backcourt defense, while Paul Krasnoo and Greg Litchfield did an exceptional job passing.

Andover JVs

The junior varsity closed its season with an 18-2 overall record, sweeping St. John's Prep and Methuen 2-0 before losing to Latin Academy 2-0 in the finale.

In the 15-6, 15-9 payback of SJP (the Eagles beat Andover 2-1 earlier), Nick Wilson was 20-for-21 hitting with eight kills, Zach Gray 23-for-21 hitting with nine kills, Jon Adams 8-for-9 hitting with four kills, and Eric Bourassa 11-for-13 hitting with three kills.

Andover was missing three key players (class trip) against Latin Academy, and the Boston school took advantage en route to a 15-11, 15-13 victory.

Baseball ties for second in MVC; competes in division 1 north tourney

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High baseball team will once again enter the Eastern Mass. Division 1 North Tournament at close to a full gallop.

The Golden Warriors, who were struggling along at the .500 mark midway through the season, turned everything around after a productive team meeting three weeks ago.

Since that important self-analytical session, Coach Ken Maglio's squad has beaten every other team in the Large School Division of the Merrimack Valley Conference, and battled to the championship game of the Lawrence Invitational Tournament last weekend at Mark Devlin Field before bowing 4-1 to the host Lancers in the title game.

By defeating every other MVC Large School team down the stretch, Andover was able to finish tied with Central Catholic for second place in the division with identical 10-5 records.

Lowell won the title for the second straight year, at 13-2, while Haverhill skidded to fourth at 9-6. Those four teams and Chelmsford all qualified for the upcoming EMass. Tournament.

The loss to Lawrence snapped a seven-game victory streak, ended Andover's domination of that traditional regular season ending tourney after five straight titles, and left the locals at 13-7 overall.

Eastern Mass. Tournament pairings were announced on Tuesday and the Golden Warriors, defending North champions, were expected to open play in the single-elimination event either today or tomorrow.

All-Conference

selected to the 13-member Merrimack Valley All-Conference team.

Senior first baseman Tom Gardner was voted to the MVC Large School Division All-Star squad.

All were expected to play for the Large School team last night in the annual All-Star Game against the Middlesex League at Alumni Field in Lowell.

Track earns seconds at Class Bs, golds for Ashlock & Famiglietti

By Rick Harrison

Juniors Susan Ashlock and Missy Famiglietti nailed down individual titles in the two-mile and triple jump respectively, with Ashlock setting yet another school record, as the Andover High men's and women's spring track teams both placed second in the annual Eastern Mass. State Class B Championship Meet last weekend at Reading High.

Susan Ashlock won first place in the two-mile race, setting a new school record with 11:10.3, at the Eastern Mass. State Class B Championship meet last weekend at Reading High School.

Both AHS tennis teams sweep the valley with double golds; on to states

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High men's and women's tennis teams put the finishing touches on undefeated Merrimack Valley Conference seasons last week with twin 5-0 sweeps of Billerica and Lowell.

The men also whitewashed Central Catholic, 5-0, to complete an unprecedented "golden year" in which every victory was a shutout.

After an opening non-league loss to St. John's Prep, the Andover men did not surrender a point to any MVC opponent.

The women had a couple close calls, eking out 3-2 wins over Haverhill and Lawrence High without their top lineup on the court.

But 12 of their 16 victories were also 5-0 shutouts.

The AHS men were 18-0 in the league and 18-1 overall, while the AHS women finished pre-tournament play at 16-0.

Coach Mike Wirtman's Andover men enter the Eastern Mass. Division 1 Team Tournament with a 173-9 record in their last 182 league matches, and a 199-21 ledger in the last 220 overall including non-league and tournament play.

This was the third straight MVC title for Andover, its 10th in Wirtman's 12 seasons.

at Reading High.

The Lady Warriors claimed a third Class B title when the 4x100 sprint relay quartet of Randi Spiegel, Amy Levesque, Laura Burke and Barbara Contos also placed first.

The top individual finishes by the men were second places from Miller Charlie Russo and pole vaulter Peter Ellis.

This is one of numerous second place finishes for AHS men's teams over the years, while the Golden Warriors have also captured 12 Class B and C team titles during Coach Dick Collins' 36-year tenure at the school.

The Andover women, meanwhile, came up just short in their bid to defend the Class B title they captured last spring.

Dartmouth High won the Class B women's team championship in a close three-way race, finishing with 58 points while Andover scored 50 and third place Reading had 48.

The men's division produced a runaway 34-point victory for Merrimack Valley Conference Large School champion Central Catholic, which amassed 81 points to runner-up Andover's 47.

There were approximately 30 schools competing in Class B.

The top four finishers in each event automatically qualified for this Saturday's All-State Meet to be held at Smith College in Northampton.

Several fifth- and sixth-place finishers, whose performances were among the leaders in all four Eastern Mass. classes, were also to be selected and notified of their All-State berths this week.

Andover definitely qualified four individual women, two women's relay teams, seven individual men and one men's relay team.

"Overall we're pleased to be State Class B runner-up in both divisions," said coach Collins. "We had anticipated a possible victory for the girls, who turned in some outstanding performances. But it just didn't happen."

Injury report

What Coach Collins downplayed as "part of the game" were costly injuries to both Barron sisters, who would have picked up valuable points had they been and the Warriors have also captured four North Sectional championships and been to three state finals (all Division 2) in recent years.

Coach Tony Russo's AHS women extended their impressive league win streak through five years and 81 straight matches.

They are 154-1 in their last 155 league matches and 166-9 in their last 175 overall.

This year's MVC crown is the sixth straight and ninth in 12 years for the Lady Warriors.

EMass. Tournament

Eastern Mass. Tournament pairings were scheduled to be released this past Tuesday, with both Andover teams anticipating high seeds, first-round byes and their opening Division 1 North matches within the next couple days.

Andover men

The Golden Warriors surrendered only five points in the five individual matches against Billerica.

Junior Captain Mike Stein and junior Andy Ravens blitzed their opponents 6-0, 6-0 at first and second singles, while junior Ravi Tharisiyali had an easy 6-0, 6-2 time at No. 3 to complete the sweep.

healthy.

Senior Captain Jamie Barron, a sprint and long jump specialist plagued by injuries this season, suffered a sprained ankle last week that sidelined her for the Class Meet.

The elder Barron had been rounding back into form after missing much of the regular season with a pulled muscle.

Freshman Courtney Barron, a top hurdler, was lost for the meet after she struck a hurdle during the preliminaries and broke her wrist.

Andover women

Susan Ashlock continues to pile up the first-place medals, trophies and ribbons while smashing practically every indoor and outdoor long distance record in the Andover High women's book.

Last weekend she ran the two-mile in 11:10.3, a personal-best and school record, as she won the race by 40 yards.

It was by far Ashlock's top time this spring, bettering her previous low of 11:37 by almost a half-minute.

Ashlock had run an 11:07 in a championship meet last year, but that was over a 3,200 meter distance which is about 30 yards shorter than two miles.

Missy Famiglietti remained virtually unbeatable in the triple jump as she soared over 35 feet once again (35'7"), sparking an impressive 1-2 AHS finish completed by junior Allyson Ahern at 34'6."

Senior Captain Eveline Yang also unleashed three prodigious jumps but was called for a foot foul each time to eliminate her from the scoring.

The 4x100 meter sprint team, bouncing back from a tough day at the MVC Championship Meet, blazed to victory in 50.9.

The swift foursome consisted of junior Randi Spiegel, senior Captain Amy Levesque, junior Laura Burke and freshman anchor Barbara Contos.

Levesque completed a very successful day with a third place in the 200 meter dash.

Also qualifying for All-States with a fourth-place finish was the 4x800 meter relay team of sophomore Abby Clarke, sophomore Kollen Cronin, freshman Viki Pierce and the omni-present Ashlock at anchor (10:02.3).

In doubles, freshman Dave Gutstein and Dave Sullivan coasted 6-1, 6-0 and the junior tandem of Joel Elzweig and Mike Wellikoff cruised 6-2, 6-0.

Stein pounded his way to another 6-0, 6-0 triumph against Lowell's Jon Lang, while sophomore Ross Fenton was inserted in the No. 3 slot and responded with a similar 6-0, 6-0 romp over the Red Raiders' Patchay Xiong.

Junior Captain Kurt Dahlstrand found the going a little tougher against John Maciejewski at second singles, but still rolled 6-2, 6-4 in straight sets.

Only six games were squandered by Andover's two doubles tandems, juniors Marc Formichella and Jay Levine symmetrical 6-1, 6-1 victors at No. 1 while senior Chris Ouellette and Dave Sullivan prevailed 6-1, 6-3.

Central Catholic, a tourney qualifier and third place finisher in the MVC, was no match for the locals who once again won everything in straight sets at the Merrimack College courts.

In singles, invincible Mike Stein mangled Frank Ferrucci 6-0, 6-2, Kurt Dahlstrand dominated Wayne Slatery 6-2, 6-2, and Ross Fenton flattened Anthony Pappalardo 6-1, 6-0.

Completing the scorers with sixth places for the MVC Large School champions were senior long jumper Amy Baker (15'8") and freshman 300-meter intermediate hurdler Sarah Muller (49.6).

Andover men

The Golden Warriors scored points in nine events en route to second place, but couldn't match Central Catholic which walked away with three firsts, two seconds and points in 13 different events.

Charlie Russo, whose best performances have traditionally come in the big meets, ran a solid 4:34.4 mile en route to second place. Sophomore Peter Ellis cleared an exceptional 13'6" in the pole vault, a personal-best good for second place behind Central's Jamie Whiting (13'6").

Contributing individual third places for Andover were senior Mike Marconis in the long jump (20'4") and junior Adam Westaway in the triple jump (41'11 1/2"). Also finishing third was the 4x100 meter sprint relay quartet of Matt Auferio, junior Josh Hatch, Alex Dalis and senior Jeff Arsenault (44.7).

Fourth places were nailed down by senior high jumper and Captain Jon Hall (6'2"), Hatch in the 200 meter dash (23.5), and junior Eric DeMarco in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles (41.5). Senior Captain Matt Ely picked up the final Andover point with a sixth place in the 800 meters (2:02.2).

Senior Eskinder Graham saw a terrific performance go unrewarded, as his personal-best 10:02.3 effort in the two-mile placed him just off the scoreboard in seventh.

All-State qualifiers

Those AHS women athletes definitely headed for Smith College in the western Mass. hamlet of Northampton this Saturday are Susan Ashlock, Missy Famiglietti, Amy Levesque, Randi Spiegel, Laura Burke, Barbara Contos, Allyson Ahern, Abby Clarke, Kollen Cronin and Viki Pierce. On the men's side the All-Staters will be Charlie Russo, Peter Ellis, Mike Marconis, Adam Westaway, Matt Auferio, Josh Hatch, Alex Dalis, Jeff Arsenault, Jon Hall and Eric DeMarco.

Finneran qualifies

Ned Finneran of Andover, the top shot putter for Class B champ Central Catholic, also qualified for the All-State Meet.

Ravi Tharisiyali and Andy Ravens stamped their opponents 6-1, 6-3 in first singles, while Jay Levine and Marc Formichella remained formidable with a 6-0, 6-2 annihilation of the Red Raiders' George Thompson and Chris Leblanc.

Andover women

Two highly-competitive singles matches made the Lady Warriors' 5-0 bagel of Lowell closer than it appears.

Three clashes ended in 6-0, 6-0 sweeps, however, with undefeated sophomore No. 1 singles standout Heather Young subduing Caroline Hughes in one of them.

The unbeaten doubles tandem of senior Jackie LeMaitre and junior Andrea Marvin trimmed Kelly Nangle and Patty Landry 6-0, 6-0.

Senior Captain Kelly Mitchell joined junior Meghan Pauley in total court domination of Amy Romanowsky and Danielle Simmons.

On the other hand, senior Captain Jen Griffin had to pull out all the stops before registering a come-from-behind 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 decision over Lowell's Itzilar Echevarria at second singles, and freshman Lauren Roda edged Alex McAdams 7-6 (7-3 in the tiebreaker), 6-3 in the other tussle.

Maglio's men on to north tourney

neighbor a 2-0 lead in the top of the first, but dominated the rest of the game with 10 hits, a dozen stolen bases, runs in every inning except the second, and a strong outing in relief from sophomore righthander Mark O'Sullivan.

O'Sullivan (2-0), who started the season with the junior varsity but stepped into the spotlight with a strong four-inning varsity outing against Lowell five days earlier, blanked the Scarlet Knights on five scattered hits over the final 5 2/3 innings.

O'Sullivan had a sharp-breaking curve to strike out nine batters. The Golden Warriors manufactured their first run in the opening stanza when leadoff batter Brian Tisbert was hit by a pitch, took second on Mike Maguire's bunt, stole third and raced home on a throwing error.

The locals took the lead for good with three runs in the third stanza, a two-run single by Dana McCann the key stroke.

Freshman Jason Caverly led the offense with three hits and three runs scored, while McCann finished with a pair of safeties and three RBI.

Catcher Pete Daniels and Nate Roberts contributed run-scoring hits while Tom Tanin, Tom Gardner and Maguire also had one safety each.

Dana DiFlore scored one run and drove one across, while Tisbert scored twice. Sean Deyan delivered two hits and scored one run to pace North Andover, while Darryl Perry laced a first inning RBI single. Lawrence 4

Andover 1 (Lawrence Tournament Final)

The locals inched ahead 1-0 in the first inning when Tom Tanin drew a one-out walk, stole second, and crossed on Tom Gardner's single to center.

But Brian Tisbert and Dana McCann had the only AHS safeties over the final six innings. Mike Maguire also singled in the first but was cut down trying to steal. Tom Clarke (6-6) pitched well until tiring in the fourth. McCann and Jason Caverly worked effectively in relief.

Softball drops four tough games

By Rick Harrison

The inability to score runs plagued the Andover High varsity softball team all season, but never more than the final week when the Lady Warriors played four games in four days and faced some of the toughest pitchers around. Coach Ken Pellerin's club was shut out twice, and scored only five runs in the four games, as AHS wrapped up the 1995 campaign last week with consecutive close losses to Chelmsford (1-0), Tewksbury (4-3), Lowell (6-2) and Dracut (3-0).

In 18 Merrimack Valley Conference games this spring, the locals managed just 36 runs (2.0 per game) and were shut out eight times. In only three games did Andover score more than three runs.

Contrast that with two non-league games against North Andover, when the Lady Warriors exploded for 39 runs in 20-4 and 19-0 victories. A little more offense in the MVC would have gone a long way, because there were four one-run losses and 10 defeats by four runs or less.

In 13 of its 20 total games, including six of the last seven, the Lady Warriors held the opposition to four runs or less.

Junior Vanessa Blank, who missed several games midway through the season because of a broken nose, pitched consistently well but had little to show for it.

Sophomore Michelle Crispo and Vanessa Blank, the latter with a late-season rush, both hit over .300. Other offensive statistics were compiled by Eileen Sweeney, Elaine Licata, Meghan Lynch and Sue Cookson.

Although the wins were hard to come by, the very young Andover team was highly-competitive in what is probably the state's toughest softball league. The team will graduate only two seniors, Captains Apprille Canniff and Eileen Sweeney.

MVC All-Conference Vanessa Blank has been voted to the 14-player 1995 MVC All-Conference team for the second straight year. Eileen Sweeney and Elaine Licata were also named Large School Division All-Stars.

Recall petition started for school board

By Neil Fater

Still upset with the recent actions of three School Committee members, some parents are creating a process that will allow voters to remove elected officials from office before their terms expire.

Lynne Robidoux, one of the parents involved with this work, said many parents were shocked to learn a recall process did not already exist in Andover. She said a group of eight to 10 people expect to finish a draft of a recall process this weekend and submit it to a lawyer for proofing early next week.

"Basically, what a recall is, is you feel your committee members are not working for you and you want a re-election," said Ms. Robidoux. "I think it gives the townspeople a little leverage that they haven't had before."

Because it will take so long to put a recall process in place, however, Ms. Robidoux said the recall process may not be used to remove Susan Dalton, Dick Muller and Lloyd Willey, the School Committee mem-

Seniors pushed to move on expansion project Selectmen want halt to seeking other options

By Don Staruk

Selectmen Monday night pushed Andover's senior citizens to get moving on expanding the Senior Center in its current location, and to stop waiting for the schools to make them a better offer to build elsewhere.

"Other options may be there, but they're not being considered at this point," Chairman Larry Larsen said after the meeting.

By a 4-0 vote (selectman Gerald Silverman had left early due to another commitment), the board passed a motion recommending seniors halt looking at any other options and proceed with the proposal approved at April Town Meeting.

That proposal may allow seniors to build one or more additions on the former East Junior High, and to take over some or all of the second and third floors of the building, both of which are currently occupied by

Tick, ticks, ticks and more ticks

By Alix Driscoll

The swarming clouds of mosquitoes of a decade ago are rivaled this year by a terror of ticks. This is the impression of many residents of town who have been continually pulling the eight-legged members of the spider family off their children, their dogs and themselves.

According to Andover veterinarian Richard Lindsay of the Andover Animal Hospital, there is a particularly bountiful crop of ticks this year because the mildness of the past winter allowed the tick eggs to survive into spring. One female tick can lay several thousand eggs and, this year, the season began in April, about a month earlier than usual, he said.

Frayda Koffman, of Forbes Lane, speaks for many when she

4 finalists named for W. Middle head

By Neil Fater

Lorraine Greenfield, the first of four finalists for the West Middle School principal position, will arrive at West Middle today and be available to meet parents at 2:45 p.m.

Ms. Greenfield was one of four educators an interview committee selected for consideration by Dick Neal, superintendent. Mr. Neal will now pick a replacement for Sam Campbell, the current principal, from these four finalists. None of the finalists are local residents.

"Each one of them will be brought in for a day in the community," said Mr. Neal. "There will be opportunity during the day that they come to visit with staff, visit with parents and visit with administration."

Mr. Neal said each finalist will meet with

Town to study purchase of Champy tract 71 acres abut Den Rock Park

By Don Staruk

Selectmen Monday night directed the town counsel to look into what obstacles would need to be overcome for the town to consider acquiring part of the Rose Champy property, 55 acres of undeveloped land off Stirling Street and adjacent to Den Rock Park on the town's northeast border.

If there are no legal obstacles that would prevent the town from moving forward on it, a group of town officials and interested residents will then meet to discuss various options for pursuing acquisition of the land.
